SANITARY BOARD FORCED TO LET
$27,000,000 GO

Give Up Last Minute
Fight for Bonds.

The sanitary district trustees who have been spending an average of $1,000,000 a year adjourned sine die at night, abandoning all hope of obtaining a $27,000,000 bond issue on which they depended to carry on their construction work for 1929.

The failure to obtain the bond issue rings the board face to face with the rest acute financial crisis in its history.

A new law, effective today, is necessary for the board to contract issues to referendum and no such vote can be had and issue till next fall, it is a result, there must be a withdrawal of all the vast sanitary district activities, according to trustees.

Hope and Despair.

The trustees' final meeting of the year last night was filled with alternate surges of hope and despair over the $27,000,000 bond issue which had been held up by a court restraining order obtained by Attorney Austin L. Lyman.

At one time the trustees appeared to have reached an agreement with Mr. Wyman to dismiss the suit.

Then while the attorneys for both sides were drawing up the court documents and the trustees met and adjourned and instructed their attorneys to drop the matter where it stood.

Failure to complete the sale of the bonds on Nov. 22, will result in the halting of all sanitation construction and the serious hampering of the district's normal functioning.

Activities of sewage disposal will be curtailed and it was said yesterday by the trustees that further pay roll out would be made.

For three hours the trustees met in the office of President Howard W. Moore and negotiated with Mr. Wyman over the telephone. Late in the afternoon the attorney stated that he will agree to dismissal providing the trustees would agree to pass resolutions more fully stating the purpose which the bonds were to be used.

Likewise agree to an accounting of various expenditures.

Judge Reopens Court.

Court had closed when the apparent settlement was reached over the phone.

However, Judge Dennis E. Sullivan reached at his club and consented to return to his court to hear the matter for dismissal. Charles E. Anthony and Samuel Wlenschenker of the district's legal staff hurried to the city building, where they met the attorney for the petitioners.

Wyman made a statement of his position. The suit was brought by a real client, he said, who sought dollars and cents satisfaction.

"I do not know when this action was filed, but I understand that it would cause such a stir, and I had no idea that such pressure would be brought to bear from so many sources," Wyman said.

After dismissal of the suit after an eleventh hour agreement might bring charges of irregularity, made a hesitant about withdrawing the suit, the attorney asserted. He asked Mr. Sullivan if his withdrawal was ethical under the circumstances.

A court stated that he was not in position to pass upon this point.

Mr. Sullivan asked further that the press present while he negotiated with the sanitary district attorneys on the matter of the withdrawal.

Would File Suit Again.

While Wyman agreed to dismissal of the action, which sought to enjoin issuance of the bonds and asked an accounting of previous expenditures, he stated that later he would refile the latter prayer.

While the attorney's were conferring in the court corridors a telephone call came from a member of the drainage and instructing the district's attorney to cease all negotiations, as the latter had decided to go no further in filing a dismissal.

The trustees, who insisted that name not be disclosed, stated he learned that the secret plaintiff made certain overtures to the man in which he said he would be dismissed only in case a debt of $25,000 owed him by the district had him. The debt, it was said, was not collected legally. It was the trustee, said that prompted him to cease negotiations.

Hears of Money Offers.

President Elmore stated last night there were reports abroad that representatives of the sanitary district had approached Wyman with

A BIRTH AND DEATH NOTICE THAT ALWAYS COMES AT MIDNIGHT

CITY'S URGENT NEEDS LISTED FOR NEW YEAR

Frigid Wave to Greet New Year Today

Appeal Made to Get Ready for 1933.

A cold wave ushered in the year 1928 and weather history is scheduled to repeat itself today. Snow was falling as the whistles blew in the New Year and the weather bureau forecast announced there would be more of the same today, to be followed by a fall in temperature that would carry the mercury down to 5 above zero tonight.

Tomorrow, according to the prediction, will be clear, but the near zero temperatures are expected to continue.

Last evening the oncoming cold wave, which originated in the frozen wastes of Alaska, had overspread the central great plains region and reached out eastward into the upper Mississippi valley. Sub-zero temperatures were registered in North Dakota and Minnesota and snow had fallen generally over the territory from the Rocky mountains to the northern great lakes.

Today was the twofold message of congratulation and warning in a New Year's statement made yesterday by Col. Albert A. Sprague, vice chairman and spokesman for the Chicago Plan commission. On top of the list of Father Dearborn's resolutions, he said, should be a pledge to carry forward the Chicago plan projects halted by defeat of the Thompson-Faherty bond issues at the elections of 1928.

City Faces Six Major Jobs.

Progress should be made during 1929 on six major improvements, all of which must be completed before the World's Fair in 1933. Col. Sprague asserted. These six big tasks are:

1. Dig downtown subways.

2. Solve the south side terminal problem.

3. Build a west side superhighway.

4. Complete the outer drive bridge.

5. Build the Wabash avenue bridge.

6. Finish the unpaved street projects.

Mr. Sprague's statement reiterated a similar message delivered six weeks ago by James Simpson, president of the plan commission, expressing alarm at the bond issue defeats and proposing a civic committee to take over management of the city's improvement program.

Bonds on Sale Again.

The Simpson statement, interpreted as a criticism of Michael J. Faherty, head of the board of local improvements, brought a sharp rejoinder from Mr. Faherty, blaming the commission for the bond defeat. Mayor Thompson, in a diplomatic note, explained that the job of the commission is to plan and not to manage improvements. In the face of demands for Faherty's resignation, the mayor has announced the bonds will again be submitted to the voters in February.

"While the Chicago Plan commission is able to report that substantial progress was made on some of the projects during 1928, it is very deeply concerned about the opportunity for progress during 1929," said Col. Sprague.

"I consider it my first duty to sound an alarm because of the cessation in activities brought about by the unwillingness of the public to approve the general program of bond issues submitted in the last two elections. A situation has developed which is intolerable from the standpoint of the city's general welfare and which, if not soon remedied, will have a disastrous stunting effect upon Chicago's growth.

Delay Perils World's Fair.

"Unless we make steady progress during the next four years on our principal transportation projects, such as subways occurred the previous day. In the Chicago Beach hotel an orderly and ap- parently a nondrinking crowd was quiet. The Cooper-Carlton hotel did not even have its dining room open.

The general results, so far as prohibition observance was concerned, was regarded as pleasing by Hurlbut, active head of Yellowley's forces to prevent New Year's eve drinking.

"This is the quietest New Year's eve I have ever experienced," he said. "I think the people have grown tired of bootleg and gangster wars and are reconciled to the fact that we have a prohibition law."

Special Church Services.

Another side of the New Year picture was presented in churches where special watch services were held. At the fashionable Fourth Presbyterian church, the rector, Dr. John Timothy Stone, preached a New Year sermon between 11 o'clock and midnight. A musical preceded the religious service.

A service of the Theoburn Methodist Episcopal church, 54th and Paulina streets, was held at the Drexel Park Presbyterian church. All were well attended. Many Episcopal churches offered midnight services similar to those on Christmas eve.

For the homeless ones who sought spiritual consolation with the new year, Goodwill's soup kitchen at 12 West Lake street held its regular annual watch service. The Rev. Benjamin Mickle preached a sermon dwelling on the folly of the mundane observance of the New Year and emphasizing the religious significance of New Year.

Girl Hit by Bullet.

In many outlying sections of the city the enthusiasm of celebrants was expressed by the discharge of pistols and guns. Miss Sylvia Stanton, 18 years old, 1636 North Cicero avenue, was shot in the back while attending a party at 36th Street and Belmont.

She was standing at an open window when a stray bullet from the street struck her. The party ended with her in a hospital and the other members of the party in a police station for questioning.

Paul Lasky, 27 years old, 4521 South Troy street, a surface lines conductor, was shot in the left hand and left eye when he stepped from his car at 47th street and Washington avenue. Several reports of pistol shooting and the breaking of windows and automobile windshields by stray bullets were made.

The snow that fell before midnight rendered the streets slippery and automobile traffic on all the main thoroughfares of the city and suburbs was considerably slowed.

LIGHTEN MEDICAL RUM BAN. Washington, Dec. 31.—(Special.) Physicians' wishes to prescribe whisky to patients suffering from influenza can exceed, if necessary, their usual monthly allotment of 100 prescriptions under an announcement today by the Prohibition officer in his territory.

GOTHAM GREETS '29 WITH DRINKS BY THE MILLION

Raid Dives, but Whoopee Cafes Run Wide Open.

New York, Dec. 31.—(Special.) Little old New York set out tonight to welcome to its heart little young 1929, and at the same time a few million of Father Knickerbocker's children heaved some more jolly kicks into the much battered ribs of the prohibition camel. The gay world was adrift by approximately 100,000 merry-making.

Those willing to help contempt on the eighteenth amendment received the threat of a setback when Police Commissioner Whalen announced that raiding would go on as usual, but there was a crumb of comfort when he explained that it would be concentrated against "dives and crime breeding speakeasies." He indicated that respectable places would be let alone. Reports indicated that the merrymaking was not being seriously interfered with.

Police Are Prepared.

There was a concentration of headquarters detectives in the West 47th police station, with patrol wagons handy to put dents in the cups of the disreputable thirsty, while over in Brooklyn Deputy Inspector Thomas P. Cummings sent out five squads, sixty men all, to mop up across the river. It was said the flask toters would be ignored by them.

The raids began early, some places being visited by raiding parties before the festivities had begun. Both the police and federal agents figured in the various interruptions of celebrations.

Before the old year's dying groans had been drowned in the hours of welcome to its successor, raids had been made by federal agents upon the West Side, the Hotel Heath Inn and Hunter Island Inn in the Bronx. They had raided also Dinty Moore's, the Footlight club, and the Sanborn chop house in the Roaring Forties. Several arrests were made.

Watch for Pickpockets.

Three hundred extra patrols were sent into the tenebrous district to handle the crowds, while detectives with their nets mingled in the Broadway procession to intercept any of the light fingered genies who might have escaped the dragnet.

Hotels and restaurants, especially in the Grand Central and Park avenue sectors, reported record reservations, and cover charges collected in these and Broadway night clubs amounted to more than $1,000,000, including crumpled ice, but excluding ginger ale, mineral waters and the other ingredients.

In most cases the cover charge in

Guns of Berlin Gangs Add Spice to New Year Whoopee

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ,
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 31.—Berlin is enjoying a wild New Year's eve. Early in the evening fireworks were set off at important traffic centers and guns popped in the eastern section of the city.

The gang known as the "Forever True club," which engaged in a battle with a guild of carpenters last night, were out to punish the tradesmen who called in the police to stop the fight, in which two men died and many were wounded.

The wretched shops and a score were wounded, but though the police reserves again were called on, they failed to arrest any members of the club.

This organization is one of the most notorious in Berlin's underworld, and the police are said to know all of its members. They are the most ruthless hoodlums in the capital, and tonight were lively with crowds of all classes far into the morning.

Restaurants Well Filled. In the Montmartre cabarets, where Americans and Frenchmen ditched their political differences in a riotous farewell to Old Year 1928, midnight arrived with showers of confetti and cans of champagne.

At the de luxe places champagne was as low as $3 a bottle, while the more modest cafés were selling a substitute sparkling wine for 50 cents up.

Huge midnight meals, including dips, taxes, music, and dancing, were $1 to $2. As a result of the reasonable prices the Parisian streets, 3,000 miles from the Volstead act, were lively with crowds of all classes far into the morning.

MONTRÉAL, Que., Dec. 31.—Eastern Canada tonight faced the prospect of a green New Year's day for the first time in half a century. In city and country places alike there is no snow and there appears little prospect of any tonight or tomorrow.

The test is expected to come this morning when dairymen meet in their respective stations to the various country milk associations. According to their association officials the milk will be hauled to the plants at the regular time and it will be the privilege of the dealers to accept it or reject it at the new price.

It is understood that the contract between dealers and individual milk producers expired yesterday. There was much uncertainty as to whether dealers would offer their contracts at the beginning of the new year.

"LIFE FOR PINT" LAW TRIUMPHS OVER A WOMAN

Mother of Ten Is Sent to Living Death.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—A life sentence in the Detroit house of correction was Michigan's way of saying "Happy New Year" to Mrs. Etsa Mae Miller, convicted by a jury this afternoon of being an habitual criminal because of four violations of the state prohibition laws.

Mrs. Miller, who is the mother of ten children, four of whom are now living, remained defiant as she faced Judge Charles B. Collingwood to hear the mandatory life sentence.

She was found guilty, she said, when asked by the court what she had anything to say before sentence was pronounced.

"But the jury has found you guilty," the judge countered.

"I don't care," said the frail woman of 45. "I'm not guilty, anyway."

But the judge, bound by the statute, informed her that she must spend the remainder of her days in the Detroit prison, the only institution available to which women may be sentenced.

Starts Sentence Today.

She was led away by Sheriff Hugh Slaby, who said he would take her to the house of correction, some distance from the county clerk. It was anticipated early this evening that Mrs. Miller would remain at the county jail in Mason tonight and take up her permanent residence in the Detroit institution tomorrow.

Its task simplified by the indisputable nature of the facts to be considered, today's jury made up of eight men and four women, spent but 15 minutes in deliberation before calling Mrs. Miller's fate. Despite the legal skirmishing of defense counsel, it seemed plain to the jury that Mrs. Miller had been convicted of four dry law offenses, construed under Michigan laws as felonies, and that therefore she was automatically eligible to the state's extreme penalty provided for so called habitual criminals in the new criminal code.

Procedure Called Illegal.

Mrs. Miller's attorneys, Senator Persson and Claude Marshall, urged that the entry procedure was not only unprecedent but contrary to state and legal practice. Senator Persson, who was an opponent of several features of the criminal code when it was passed by the 1927 legislature, declared in his final argument that the information submitted by the prosecution did not, as claimed, prove Mrs. Miller guilty of felonies. In fact, he referred the jury to a common legal definition of a felony as an offense punishable by death or by imprisonment in a state prison. He pointed out that two of Mrs. Miller's convictions were treated as misdemeanors by Ingham county courts, as she was sentenced to the county jail rather than to a state institution.

Senator Persson said that the entire country was watching the spectacle of a great state attempting to put away for life, a mother because of four minor infractions of a much simpler law.

"The question you are about to decide," he declared, "is one of justice itself."

Defense Fights Hard.

The defense fought a gallant though losing battle throughout the day, objecting constantly to the procedure and attempting to exclude nearly every question propounded to the witness.

On Ross H. Clark, county clerk; Randolph, Ill., circuit court clerk; W. J. P. Burch, chief of police; Chief Alfred Seymour of the local police, and George H. Bearup, chief deputy of the Lansing sheriff's office were the main state witnesses.

Hillard identified the court record dealing with the previous convictions of Mrs. Miller, and Leomis read an excerpt from the woman's testimony, in which she admitted her previous convictions, the dates of which corresponded with the dates designated in the court records. Chief Seymour and Deputy Bearup identified Mrs. Miller.

It is believed probable that an appeal to the Supreme court will be taken in the case. It also is apparent that the habitual criminal law, under which Mrs. Miller was convicted, will not be Walter Collins that I killed at all. It was a strange boy who came to the ranch on the night of March 10, 1927, and told me that he had run away from his home in New York. I let him sleep in the chicken house and he stayed there all night and all the next day.

MRS. NORTHCOTT PLEADS GUILTY TO RANCH KILLING

Given Life Imprisonment;
Tries to Clear Son.

Riverside, Cal., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Two days before the start of Gordon Stewart Northcott's murder trial in Superior court here, Mrs. Sarah Louise Northcott, his mother, entered the court and pleaded guilty to the murder of Walter Collins, one of the four boys the son is accused of slaying.

It was a mother's last effort to save her son from the gallows, but her sensational move will not save young Northcott's life, according to Douglas District Attorney Earl Redwine. The youth will go to trial as scheduled on Wednesday charged with the murders of the Collins boy, Alvin Goethas, Louis Winslow and Nelson Winslow.

that night and met my grandson, Sanford Clark, coming out of the hen house. "He said, 'Mother, do I know the son of your husband, Cyrus Northcott? He is to be hanged in San Quentin.' I told him, 'My boy is lying on the top of his head crushed, as if something had fallen on him, but still alive. To put him out of his misery, I struck him with an ax. I killed him. My son, Gordon, was not at the ranch at all that night."

Son of Nobleman.

Mrs. Northcott, who joined the authorities in the search for her son, said with her son of the slaying of Walter Collins, received a life sentence in San Quentin penitentiary following her plea. She started for the prison tonight without being permitted to see her son. However, she had written a message for him. It read:

"Dear Stewart: Mr. Sweetser (Riverside county sheriff) is going out for you and is a wonderful man. Will advise you best he knows as to what you do. It will be better to finish it out of court, if possible. I went over this morning and pleaded guilty and got life. The accused youth's father was an English nobleman with whom she had an affair before her marriage, she declared.

The crimes of which young Northcott is accused were brought to light by Sanford Clark last September. He told Los Angeles officers that his son, Gordon, had killed his chicken ranch near here and murdered them after mistreating them.

Gordon Northcott's defense will be a double plea of not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

Extend Phone Franchise;
Company May Refuse It

By unanimous consent the city council yesterday passed an ordinance extending the franchise of the Illinois Bell Telephone company ninety days after it expires on Jan. 8. Ald. Jacob Arvey [24th], chairman of the committee handling the franchise negotiations, explained that attorneys for the company have stated that it will not accept the extension. The extension, he said, will be formally tendered to the company and if it rejects it the city will ask compensation for use of the streets.

MARRIAGES LAG, DIVORCES RISE IN 1928 REPORT

Notwithstanding an increase in population, there were fewer marriage licenses issued in Cook county during 1928, less than in any year since 1922, according to figures of County Clerk Robert M. Switzer. A table by years since 1920, the banner marriage year, reads:

1920	42,362
1921	38,190
1922	38,994
1923	45,119
1924	45,209
1925	46,777
1926	48,322
1927	49,088
1928	49,570

Divorces during 1928 showed an increase with a total of 5,628. The 1927 figure, estimated, was 5,511.

LAWYER'S WIFE RUINS PARTY, BUT POLICE FAIL HER Husband and Woman Are Not Jailed.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Maher, 7228 Bonnett Avenue, broke up a New Year's eve party last night and attempted to have her husband, a prominent lawyer, and his hostess, a prominent business woman, placed in jail. When the police refused to comply, she held forth for an hour in the Town Hall station on-points of law and evidence, and then telephoned her exploit to the newspapers.

Now in her middle fifties, Mrs. Maher was in girlhood a clerk in the health department. But 28 years ago she married Charles H. Lester, member of an old Chicago family and brother of the author, Mrs. A. E. Lehman. After living 10 years with young Lester she divorced him and married Capt. Edward Maher, the attorney representing her in the case. Maher, now 70 years old, is a corporation lawyer, veteran of the Spanish-American and world wars, railroad official and librarian of the Chicago Law Institute.

At 2 in. m. yesterday morning Maher posted herself across the street from an apartment at 824 Bitterroot place, where lives Mrs. Sophia Dovan Cowles, president of the Cowles Fire Escape company and president of the Woman's Association of Commerce. Mrs. Cowles is 58 years old and a client of Capt. Maher's.

At 6 o'clock when Maher, a tall, white-haired man wearing pince-nez glasses, arrived with a friend from his apartment at 444 St. James Court, where he has lived since he and Mrs. Maher separated last September, it was 6:05 when Maher, having paid the driver, and climbed three flights of stairs, knocked at Mrs. Cowles' apartment. In the interval Mrs. Maher had hurried to the rear through an alley and mounted the back stairs. As Maher was admitted in front by Mrs. Cowles, Mrs. Maher was admitted to the kitchen by the maid.

Accounts of what happened then are disputed. Mrs. Maher declares that Mrs. Cowles, in negligence, struck her with a table knife and tore an earing from her head. Mrs. Cowles, who says she was fully dressed, said Mrs. Maher attacked her with her fists and attempted to wreck the place, knocking over lamps and statuary.

The telephone at least was upset and a startled operator, hearing shrieks of murder and cries for police, turned in alarm. The three uniformed policemen, who found Mrs. Cowles tearful but fully dressed, Mrs. Maher and Mrs. Cowles each demanding the other's arrest, and the elderly lawyer making futile efforts to quiet both.

All three were hustled into a squad car and taken to the station, where Mrs. Maher renewed her demand that her husband and Mrs. Cowles be locked up for adultery. After Mrs. Maher quoted considerable law on the question, Capt. Hugh T. McCarthy, commander of the district, informed her she was making herself liable to arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct. Maher and Mrs. Cowles then left the station and Mrs. Maher stepped to a telephone and called the newspapers, agreeing to pose for or supply photographs.

Eight Doctors at Royal Bedside During Day.

BY JOHN STEELE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
LONDON, Dec. 31.—After a restful day, the king's condition was regarded in palace circles tonight as "more satisfactory," especially since the slight improvement in the local infection. Now that the doctors have almost conquered the local infection they must still combat the extreme weakness resulting from lung disease.

The king is now suffering from effects rather than the disease itself, and the doctors are making every conceivable effort on the problem of increasing the king's strength and overcoming the extreme weakness which is the toll of disease. The chief hope centers on the king's readiness to take more nourishment. Raw eggs continue to form the main part of his diet, supplemented with small quantities of milk. A little fruit juice, with essences of chicken and certain meats are administered with the medicine.

Eight Doctors at Bedside.

Tonight's bulletin from Buckingham palace read:

"The king has had a good day. No change in his condition was noted this morning. A bacteriological examination shows that the extent and power of the local infection is diminishing."

The bulletin was issued after a day of consultations at the king's bedside in which six doctors at times participated. The two doctors handling the ray therapy treatment of King George were also at the palace during the day.

Recovery to Be Slow.

At the present stage of illness, it was stated, it is possible for the patient not to show signs of progress for weeks. This is regarded as particularly being definitely a bad sign. It is pointed out that progress must be so slow and slight that it is impossible sometimes to detect any change in his majesty's condition during a short interval.

If the king maintains his condition it means that there is no setback. On the other hand, it means that the state of affairs to go on indefinitely. The doctors are hoping that the king may progress slowly day by day, with perhaps an occasional unavoidable check which may be surmounted. Such a check was experienced Sunday and successfully negotiated.

3 WOMEN KILLED BY MOTORISTS ON NEW YEAR'S EVE

Toll Mounts to 1,077 as Year Closes.

Three women were killed last night when they sought to avert tolls on Chicago streets and the motor toll for 1923 in Cook county mounted to the unprecedented total of 1,077. The total number killed in 1923, was 988.

A New Year celebrant, driving a large sedan at a high rate of speed, struck two middle aged women at Kosciusko avenue and Washington boulevard, and drove on without stopping to learn the extent of their injuries.

One, Mrs. Mary Andrews, of 4831 West Van Buren street, was killed instantly. The other, Mrs. Cliff Hartusee, 205 North Kenneth avenue, died an hour later. The two women had been walking together, on their way to visit a friend, when the accident occurred. Each was about 50 years old.

The third victim was Mrs. Emma Weith, 65 years old, $455 Iowa street. She was struck and fatally injured at Chicago and Pine avenues by an automobile driven by George Shoemaker, 1263 North Springfield avenue. Her death occurred soon afterward. Shoemaker was held.

A comparative table showing the figures by months reads:

January	62	August	99	27
February	67	September	82	91
March	76	October	111	80
April	60	November	108	90
May	59	December	122	90

POLICE ORDER SIXTY DAY CITY EMPLOYEES HELD PROMOTE THIRTY TO HIGHER RANK TO VIOLATE LAW

In the first promotions in the police department since September five sergeants were promoted yesterday to the rank of temporary lieutenant and 25 patrolmen were elevated to the rank of sergeant. The order, issued by Commissioner of Police William F. Russell, will take effect today.

Judge Albert George was assigned to the new tribunal, which will open next Monday in the South State street police building.

Motorists are killing about three times as many persons as murderers," said the chief justice. "Police Commissioner Russell informs me that the toll can be reduced by more severe prosecution of careless driving cases."

N.Y. CENTRAL IS RETICENT ABOUT CHICAGO PLANS

Still Studying Situation, Crowley's Only Word.

BY TOM PETTEY.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Officials of the New York Central railroad are giving considerable attention to the Chicago terminal situation. It was mentioned yesterday, but whether the officials there are studying will result in a New Year's present to the city of a 1929 model station still remains a secret.

"Our plans are progressing," said Peter J. Crowley, president of the road. "But they haven't reached the point where they can be discussed. At the present time I can only repeat we are studying the situation. We have had Chicago in mind all along and are considering its needs along with our own. When we reach a decision the public will be advised."

Better Under Consideration.
Mr. Crowley, when asked of the possibility of electrification in Chicago on a par with that of New York, said he had nothing to do with it. The statement printed in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE several weeks ago. At that time the New York Central president said electrification for Chicago was being considered, but that due to his like entering the city above ground it might not be the best method.

"Will you say definitely whether the board of directors has instructed you to prepare plans for a Chicago terminal with possible electrification?" Mr. Crowley was asked.

"No," replied Mr. Crowley. "I mean, I am sorry I cannot answer your question at this time. All I can tell you is that we are studying the Chicago situation."

Referred to Mr. Crowley.

George Ingalls, freight traffic manager, was asked if he had reported plans for a new Chicago terminal before the visit to President Crowley's office.

"I will have to see Mr. Crowley about that," Mr. Ingalls said. "He can tell you all about the plans for Chicago."

"Then the Central is planning something for Chicago?" persisted the interviewer.

"Well," countered Mr. Ingalls, "we do a lot of planning, but if you want to discuss the Chicago terminal you will have to go upstairs. If I knew anything about it I could not tell you."

"I don't think THE TRIBUNE has the right toward the New York Central. THE TRIBUNE called the Central a 'bad citizen.' I think THE TRIBUNE has a mistaken conception of what it takes to make a good citizen and I wrote a letter to the publishers to tell them what I thought of his editorial."

"What do you think of the plan in Chicago for legislative coercion similar to the bills passed in New York and which brought electrification to the Grand Central station?" the traffic manager was asked.

"I had not heard about it," snapped Mr. Crowley. "I don't believe there is anything to do with electrification here. I'm glad to learn they are considering taking it to the courts out there. They will find out quick enough the state has nothing to do with the running of railroads. I'm for electrification. I think it is a great thing for cities and railroads."

"I am going to proceed in our own way. We are entitled to a fair profit and must be permitted to spend where it will add to our own interests and profits."

The legislative fight against steam on Manhattan Island did not come with electrification of the Grand Central terminal. It continued against the west side freight lines, with the New York Central again the foe. This time the Central won, but not until electrification of the west side was in sight.

The first legislative effort to remove the steam engine from the west side was made in 1922. It did not get anywhere. A measure known as the Kaufman-Straus bill to "electrify railroads in certain cities" followed in 1923. This bill was introduced at the New York Central and later was enlarged to include all steam locomotive lines in the greater city.

The New York Central fought the Kaufman-Straus bill in the legislature, but it was passed. Immediately there appeared the Thayer bill backed by the New York Central. It contained amendments which would take all the teeth out of the Kaufman act.

Its supporters succeeded in jamming the measure through the senate, but Gov. Alfred E. Smith promptly vetoed it. At the same time Gov. Smith expressed the opinion that the Kaufman-Straus bill, compelling wholesale electrification, was taking in too much territory.

Two years before, in January, 1902, Mayor Seth Low, with Manhattan behind him, had gone to Albany and secured the passage of Assemblyman J. S. Appa's measure to compel the New York Central to electrify its Park avenue tunnel.

With this legislative action production eventually was electrified, but it was a long fight. It was not until early in 1918, when the doors of the present Grand Central terminal were thrown open, that complete electrification could be announced.

Shrewd Investors Buy Pearls for These 6 Reasons

1. Pearls Are Safe

Their value is intrinsic. Strikes, wars or business depressions cannot affect their worth. Unlike bonds, their value lies in what they are, not in what they represent.

The price on Pearls during the past century showed a steady increase. The increase alone is equal to a handsome dividend on the original investment.

HOLD MALONEY FOR 2 KILLINGS IN GRANADA CAFE

Blame Gun Battle on Old
Beer Feud.

Some hesitancy was exhibited yesterday by a coroner's jury in holding George Maloney, 634 Cottage Grove avenue, to the grand jury for the killing of Hugh McGovern and William "Gunner" McPadden, two notorious gunmen, early yesterday in the Granada cafe, 68th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Police Captain

John Morones, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Ralph T. Ryan, armed robbery, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Charles A. Williams.

CRIMINAL COURT.
John Morones, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Ralph T. Ryan, armed robbery, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Charles A. Williams.

A search was being made for McGovern's sweetheart, whose name was given as Margaret McGurrie, and who was said to live at the Mansfield hotel, 6432 Cottage Grove avenue. It was conjectured she might throw some light on the killing, although it was not definitely known that she was present.

Testimony at the inquest by waiters and others was that there were between 100 and 150 patrons in the cafe when the shooting started, yet there was not an eye witness to the killing from whom a statement could be taken. They had all vanished. Every one of the waiters who testified at the inquest said he was in the kitchen during the shooting.

Shows Beer Receipts.

The statement showed receipts of beer from "Syn," supposedly referring to a larger syndicate, of 77 barrels, and deliveries of 76 barrels. As near as the statement could be figured out, the totals for the week were: collections, $4,756; expenses, $1,947; bank deposits, $2,500; grand total of money still due, $4,463.

Cop Tells of Shooting.

There was some question as to whether the shot was heard over the radio. Station WHEM was broadcasting at the time, but yesterday it was stated positively the broadcasting was from the studio and not from the cafe when the shooting was done. Yet there were reports that the six shots of a Chicago gang war were heard throughout the country, particularly in the west, wherever folks might be up that late and tuned in on the doings of the "Nutty club."

If so, radio fans say, it is perhaps the first time a murder ever registered, in the history of the "Nutty club."

McGovern was shot twice in the back and McPadden was shot twice in the chest and once in the back of the head. A revolver, not fired, was close to McGovern's right hand as he lay dead on the floor. A gun, the ownership of which was credited to Maloney, was found on the floor and its six bullets had been fired.

Companions Not Named.

Maloney was at the Granada cafe with a party of four. McGovern and McPadden were in a party of eight, several tables removed. The names of the other members of the two parties were not obtained.

Maloney, who at times has been in the business and at times out of it, and who was credited with running the dangerous Danny Stanton out of the city after a gun duel, saw McGovern and McPadden in the cafe.

The police learned that the enemies sat glowering at each other for over a half hour, each on the alert for trouble to start.

Their conclusion was that something very serious indeed had caused Maloney and McGovern to reach for their revolvers at the same second and that Maloney was the quicker on the draw. His revolver had a muzzle but one inch long, while McGovern had a police revolver with the numbers filed off.

Nothing resembling a motive for the double shooting was adduced at the inquest, but police of that district didn't need formal testimony to establish a motive. Capt. Ryan was satisfied that the shooting was the result of a feud begun in ancient beer wars and fostered by each and every shooting in the south side beer territory.

CHICAGO-

NEW YEAR'S DAY is a time for renewing old faiths, restating old loyalties, reaffirming old resolutions—as well as a time for making new plans.

Chicago, a city which has awakened to fewer than one hundred new years, has achieved its preeminence through steady purpose. It has been a city of high resolutions, fine loyalties, cooperations, civic faiths. In all these, most of us today can proudly affirm our share.

Who, a hundred years ago, could have anticipated what the new years of the twentieth century would bring to the scattered village in the swamps? The cities of the east were considered the centers of national vitality. Chicago outstripped them all but one and became the greatest inland city of our country. In 1893 it showed in the World's Fair a creation of beauty that even old, marvelous Paris could not rival.

It was civic resolution, greeting each New Year with fresh determination; civic loyalty, sacrificing individual desires to the betterment of all; civic cooperation; civic faith, which is as bright today as when it shone against the black ruins of the Great Fire—it was these which made Chicago what it is today.

This New Year finds Chicago greater in power, greater in population, greater in trade and industry, richer in the things of the spirit, richer in faith, than any other which has dawned upon us. We look up and not down. We look forward and not backward. We work with high hope and confidence.

The interests of Marshall Field & Company are one with the interests of Chicago. Our faith in ourselves is only a part of our faith in Chicago. Our cooperation with the development of Chicago is as important to us as the development of our own business.

Marshall Field & Company, on this New Year, greets Chicago with a reaffirmation of purpose to serve and a determination to serve more efficiently than ever before.

THE FUTURE OF POWER.

"The power problem of mankind may be solved in another fifty years or so," a scientist said recently, and in this quiet statement prophesied a change in human living such as man in all his history never has encountered. For the scientist meant literally that power would be available for man's uses without limit and at low cost. It would be a natural property like water or like air or sunlight of which the costs lie in the machinery of usage, not in the source. In a modern civilization, founded primarily on the exploitation of the power resources of the earth, such a statement has a significance almost beyond measure.

Whence could this power abundance come? In coal today, the power basis of the modern world, America is rich, and today America is already a billion horse power nation. Coal in America, a Swedish expert says, will last 4,000 years, while coal in England will come in 450 years, and in Germany in 1,000 years. "There is not the slightest doubt," Arrenhuis says, "that the United States will hold and further secure its position as industrial leader of the world, and this is made even more certain by the fact that North America is very well placed as compared to Europe in the matter of supplies of iron. Ninety per cent of the world's known coal reserves lies in the United States and in China, in the ratio of four to three, respectively."

The age is coal and iron; but in spite of America's wealth in these industrial materials a prophecy that power without much limit and without much cost would be available from our coal reserve in hundred or a thousand years would be a foolish fancy. Whence will the power come? Oil stocks are very limited, and all the gushing water power on earth could not supply even a moderate fraction of the power used today. From energies as yet untapped will come the great power of the future.

With one windmill to the acre in our average ten mile wind, wind alone in the United States, says Ralph Bennett, would deliver eight billion seven hundred million horse power. With power reservoirs further developed, with power lines organized that can use small feeders, wind power may well become important. And tide power on our coasts with an average five foot tide would furnish 106,500,000 horse power. The earth's internal heat may some time be available for power well-nigh inexhaustible. Parsons, inventor of the turbines says that an experiment in power wells some ten or twelve miles deep, costing as much perhaps as one world's fair, might well result in new power resources beside which coal power is a feeble flickering candle.

The sun is power, father of all our energies, and the solar energy in the United States, says Steinmetz, is a thousand times the total of our coal annually consumed. Even a tenth of America's solar radiation is 13 billion kilowatts. Two average countries in the dryer part of Texas have sun enough to run all the factories and transportation systems in America. The world lies with the engineer. When he needs them, he will find engines no doubt for the sun and wind and waves and the deep heat of the earth. There is energy enough from the inside of an atom to the clash of atoms to keep man going on.

Cheap power will make a world as different from today as concentrated power in engines has made today different from the world two hundred years ago. The modern age is the child of the industrial revolution. What will be born of the power revolution of the future few will dare guess.

NEWS DRIFT.

Canada hopes bravely. In Vancouver the western spirit burns, and P. A. O'Farrell says the time will come in fifty years when wealth in Canada will surpass the wealth of her southern neighbor. The time will come, he says, if Canada's great resources are handled wisely.

The world's wealth the United States has $560,000,000,000, O'Farrell says; the British empire has $172,000,000,000; France has $70,000,000,000; Germany has $60,000,000,000; Japan has $40,000,000,000; Italy has $30,000,000,000; all others have $12,000,000,000, more or less. With 3 per cent of the population, the United States has 40 per cent of the world's wealth.

But Canada in natural wealth, the Irish westerner continues, has two dollars for every one in natural wealth owned by the United States. That is great wealth, and with energy and wisdom Canada may become a mighty power. All America will wish her well.

Vancouver is not Quebec, however, and the Evelyn west of Canada is not her Tory east. Without an eastern winter port, with the cold marches and the wilderness bearing down upon her, Canada will have no simple job in rising to such magnitude. Canada is brave and young. The northern nation is a boy entering adventure.

Another western boy has set out for adventure. Stephen Miranda of Los Angeles and Dan Blum of Chicago are sailing down from Seattle on a five year trip around the world. Their craft is a fifty foot, 1000 ton steel sailboat, and Panama and the south seas, New Zealand, China, India and Spain will be among their ports of call.

It is a boy's job and a brave one. Adventure round the world cannot but make them stronger men. Initiative and adventure, loneliness and dynamic danger are good for men; and men and boys who can afford it should fill the world with hardy wanderings.

Meanwhile more adventures open the closed doors of the world. Some men wander in the world of space. Some explore time. Some find materials a reservoir of new discovery.

In Paris a new telephone will record a talk on a bobbin of thin wire, repeat it at twelve times the speed to another bobbin at the other end of the line, then at any time desired give out the speech in words again at normal speed to the receiver. Thus can man store up telephone messages and repeat them at a chosen speed. That is adventure, too.

Invention and adventure are alike, and men chase the white whale still, though in the laboratory. Whales swim and hurl themselves, both in the research studio and in the seven seas. There still are Moby Dicks.

The Falklands, says their British governor, are the empire's chief whaling center. These are external whales, and the little group of oft embattled islands has its value still.

In 1831 the American frigate Lexington removed an Argentine colony from the Falkland Islands because of trouble in the seizure of three sailing vessels. A little later England occupied the islands and has held them ever since. In national adventure America often lacks the smartness for which this land is known. But nations and boys, peoples, inventors, artists, always will crave adventure. Good-natured adventure saves the world many wars. Wars are adventures of another kind.

TIME CHANGES, TOO.

Time has its areas and differentials, and a new day in Europe or in India may not have the same location in the stream of time that America's will have. Time is complex and relative; here, it may be cubical; there, two dimensional or a simple stream with dates upon it. With the new diversities of man's experience that have come in modern years, time breaks and shatters, and many different times may coexist.

A European who goes to New York or Chicago sees the future, the future to which Europe is likely to come, if it escapes economic disaster," says Bertrand Russell. "On the other hand, when he goes to Asia he sees the past. In India, I am told, he can see the middle ages; in China he can see the eighteenth century. If George Washington were to return to earth, the country which he created would puzzle him dreadfully. He would feel a little less strange in England, still less strange in France; but he would not feel really at home until he reached China. There, for the first time, in his ghostly wanderings, he would find men who still believe in 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness,' and who conceive these things more or less as Americans of the war of independence conceived them. And I think it would not be long before he became president of the Chinese republic."

And an American who goes to Europe now, or to India or Mexico, sees not alone the several pasta of living, the English philosopher might add, he sees a new dimension of experience. He enters a new world, that is new to him because so very old. It is a timeless world, of which America knows not much. It is a quiet world of thought and feeling that beside the mighty doings of Americans is almost an alien mode.

Enjoyment, says Russell, is the ideal of the western world, of which America is the leader. And power always is involved in action. To power Americans have willed themselves, albeit without the Nietzschean pretense and sentimentalism, and in power through action the modern world finds its ideal. It is a naive doing in America, for the most part, good natured, careless, and though the future of it may be sinister, power has never been so great up to this day, nor has power been administered in general with much good will. Power and good will may yet be America's great synthesis.

Doing is tied to time. In a world of action time rules with precious strength, and America, where action above all is significant, is set deeply in time's schedules. Though the nation never may escape to timeless realms where Omar's Persia lived, or the seer's India, there is new time for us, and the simple continuity of an earlier age gives way to more complicated temporal structures. The American today lives at many tempos and in many times. New Year's has many facets and new dimensions.

Critical time, action in a number of dimensions, marks the modern world. Past, present and the future all are organized together in the brusque event of life, and America moves on, not merely forward but in all directions, with resounding power. New Year's day comes now in all dimensions.

Editorial of the Day

A GLIMPSE AT THE FINEST CHICAGO.

(The Minneapolis Tribune.)

Chicago citizens, acting through the Chicago Boys' club, will spend $5,000,000 in the next five years erecting 25 boys' club buildings with gymnasiums, swimming pools, game rooms, libraries, art and handicraft divisions, and playgrounds. Each building will cost $300,000.

This fact statement may seem a bit strong in view of the fact that a campaign is yet to be conducted to raise money to make the program as accomplished as possible, but when the good men of Chicago are appealed to for a project of this constructive sort, the appeal rarely is in vain. It is the nature of things that we hear more about Chicago's lawlessness, more about the wrongdoing of its governmental agencies, than about civic enterprises such as that which the Chicago Boys' club has launched. Behind all this front there is a civic spirit that would do credit to any community in the world. The story of what many Chicago citizens are doing, with money from their own pockets, to safeguard the social welfare, is a really inspiring story. It ought to be better known by the people of the country.

It might be admitted that Chicago has been a score example of following the line of least resistance when it comes to an attitude toward official delinquency, to some phase of the industrial situation, and to the power which racketeers and gangsters have wielded in giving shape and color to the city's affairs. Recently there have been substantial evidences that the tolerance of that sort of thing is exhausted. There has been some housecleaning at the polls, and more of it is being conducted in other ways. The progress already made and the spirit that still evinces itself, give promise that honesty and decency will be enthroned all along the line in the conduct of the city's public affairs.

Water Wagon Cruise Ends in

Wreck. Runs on Easy Scape

Reef Soon After Sailing.

The good ship Water Wagon which sailed from the Water Tower last night at 12 o'clock is now a total wreck and is reported to be breaking up fast. The Water Wagon sailed promptly on the minute with full load of passengers. Everything was happy as the cryme began, the tourists singing "How Dry I Am" and cheering lustily for the eighteenth amendment. Within four or five blocks the good ship ran at full speed on Speak Easy Reef and sank in two feet of hooch. The passengers all escaped, although their keepers on the Water Wagon tried to get them back on board. Attempts were made to haul the Water Wagon off the reef, but the driver said it wouldn't do any good anyhow, as the speak easy reefs are so numerous it would be impossible to continue the voyage. In former years the Water Wagon used to run for days, weeks, and even months without many of the passengers falling off, but as the driver remarked last night, "Things hain't like they used to be."

Crime cleanups are all the rage now. Every city and town is being swept by the epidemic. Every home feels the urge to clean up crime. We do ourselves. Those two Java assassins are going to find out that crime is on the run.

SANITARY BOARD FORCED TO LET $27,000,000 GO

Lose Last Minute Fight for Bond Issue.

money offers to dismiss the suit. "Whether there is any truth in the report, I do not know," said Mr. Elmore, "but such reports with the news of the last minute conferences, we thought would likely lead to the belief that everything was not entirely regular. It might shake public confidence in the board, and public confidence is imperative in our present difficulty. That is why we decided not to proceed further."

Trustee Ross A. Woodhull stated last night that the action was dropped because the board "became disgusted with the tangled, futile negotiations. We have been running around for two weeks trying to arrive at an agreement," he said. "This afternoon we had Wyman on the verge of an agreement a dozen times and then were told that he was undecided until he reached his client. We got tired of it."

WILL APPEAL TO ASSEMBLY.

The trustees will go to the state legislature for relief as the next move, Mr. Elmore indicated last night. A bill asking for the suspension of the referendum law for a period of six months or a year may be sought.

In case of a failure in the assembly the next move would be a special election on the bond issues, the president stated. "And if the bonds do not pass we shall simply have to hobble along as best we can on a broken financial basis."

A further cut in the pay rolls will be effected shortly, Mr. Elmore stated. He indicated that the police department, whose force was cut in two last Saturday, would get another pruning. The operations division of the engineering department will likewise be affected, according to Chief Engineer Edward J. Kelly.

FEAR U. S. COMPLICATION.

In addition Mr. Kelly pointed out that the $30,000,000 north side sewage disposal plan, recently completed, may have to cease operations because of the failure of the referendum. The chief consequence is the halting of all construction work, included in the program outlined by the United States government in connection with the war department permit regulating the diversion of water from Lake Michigan. The bonds provided for payment of contractors who are now at work on projects which will cost $15,000,000 when completed.

CITE DRY CHIEF FOR CONTEMPT OF U. S. COURT

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell has been cited to appear before Federal Judge Julian W. Mack next Friday to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

The citation is based upon Maj. Campbell's alleged refusal to obey a decree signed by Federal Judge J. C.

Hutchison Jr., ordering him to "restore and recognize" the alcohol permits of W. H. Long & Co., Inc., a denaturing plant at Port Chester, N. Y., which had been revoked by the administrator on Feb. 10.

The contempt proceedings against Maj. Campbell, granted as they do, out of alcohol withdrawals, recall the fact that he recently criticized the prize winning prohibition enforcement plan of former Prohibition Administrator Chester P. Mills, because it stressed the control of withdrawals.

This, Maj. Campbell said, was no longer the chief problem of enforcement.

LOESCH TO HEAD PROSECUTION IN GRAFT INQUIRY

Veteran, 76, Accepts Post; Says He's "Ready."

The comprehensive investigation of city and county affairs, including an inquiry into sanitary district expenditures for alleged padded pay rolls, asked for yesterday by State's Attorney John A. Swanson in a petition for a special grand jury, will be placed in the hands of Frank J. Loesch, first assistant state's attorney.

The 76 year old former special assistant attorney general, battler of the alliance of crime and politics, announced himself as ready for the inquiry, if Chief Justice John J. Sullivan of the Criminal court grants the petition for a special jury on Thursday morning.

"I am ready and in a fighting mood," said the veteran president of the Chicago Crime commission, as he went into conference with Prosecutor Swanson to map out plans for the proposed inquiry.

Given Unlimited Power.

The petition asking for the jury gives unlimited power to the investigators.

The only specific subject mentioned is an inquiry into the police department, as recommended by the last special grand jury in November.

The investigation will not be restricted to the police department, it is reported, in view of the language of the petition, which charges a "conspiracy between the law enforcement departments of this community and organized crime."

The state's attorney's office under the old regime and even the former coroner's staff could come under the heading of "law enforcement departments."

The pay roll section of the inquiry covers members of the various branches of the city and county government. The term "municipal corporation" used in the petition, where it is charged that vast sums of money have been misappropriated, embezzled and unlawfully taken, might mean any of the city or county bodies, such as the sanitary district, county board, or school board.

Quiz on Sanitary Pay Roll.

It was admitted, however, that the inquiry at this time will be devoted chiefly to two subjects, the "law enforcement" charge and the sanitary district pay roll quiz. This investigation may also branch out into possible collusion in the letting of contracts during the last three years, it was said.

The petition, which comes as a climax to the demand of the Citizens' association for an investigation of the drainage board's affairs, states that the regular jury is occupied with routine affairs and that a special jury is necessary "at the end that numerous and flagrant violations of the law of this state may be stopped and those guilty thereof prosecuted in accordance with law."

The petition then continues:

"It has successively appeared in the reports of the grand juries summoned by special venire from June to November, inclusive, that members of the police department have permitted endless violations of law without any attempt to suppress such violations or to prosecute the perpetrators thereof; that open and notorious gambling has been permitted to go on unhampered, and that disorderly houses have been allowed openly and notoriously to operate.

"There have appeared in the public prints of Chicago a vast number of articles relative to fictitious, false and forged pay rolls maintained in the offices of members of the municipal corporations within this Cook county, wherein it is charged that the city, county and state have been defrauded of large sums of money."

"Charges have been brought to the attention of your petitioners that in many departments of other municipal corporations exercising public functions in Cook county, vast sums of money have been misappropriated, embezzled and unlawfully taken."

The new inquiry, if allowed by the chief justice, will start immediately after the jury is impaneled next Monday afternoon. Attorney David D. Stanbury, who has been made special assistant prosecutor, will assist Mr. Loesch, as will Attorney Thomas D. Slusher, who carried on the pay roll quiz of Corporation Counsel Samuel Ettelson's office.

1928 IS CALLED 'DISTRESSING' BY CITY TREASURER

But Outlook for 1929 Is Better, He Reports.

From a financial standpoint 1928, the first full year under the present Thompson administration, has been "distressing." City Treasurer Charles S. Peterson reported in a New Year's statement yesterday. He expressed hope for better conditions in 1929.

"After the distressing financial year we have just passed through," said Mr. Peterson, "it is a pleasure to note the excellent work done by the council finance committee in preparing a budget that, if properly carried out, will enable the city to pay its way during 1929, and this in the face of sharply decreased revenues and the normal increase in expenses to be expected in a growing community."

Deficits Cause "Distress."

Some of the "distressing" factors in the 1928 fiscal year, apparently referred to by Mr. Peterson, were:

1. Increase of corporate fund deficit to $115,281.

2. Increase of water fund deficit to $12,462,877.

3. Increase of vehicle tax fund deficit to $179,802.

4. Depletion of all bond funds.

In addition to the piling up of these deficits as shown by the municipal ledgers, disclosures in the last few days have shown that the city faces an even more critical emergency, which has forced it to dip into its trust funds to the extent of $6,000,000 to meet corporate pay rolls. Further, it is unable to pay bills amounting to $1,000,000 against the corporate fund, and $2,000,000 against the water fund. Vouchers for these bills are unmailed in the controller's office.

School Board in Trouble.

Among the other happenings which may have been considered "distressing" by Mr. Peterson were the grand jury pay roll investigations and the school board money crisis which held up teachers' salaries in December.

The school board budget, which Mr. Peterson stated should send the city "through 1929 in good shape," was presented to the city council at its meeting yesterday. The budget, if passed, will lop close to $5,000,000 off the 1928 expenditures, reducing the total from $62,000,000 to approximately $57,000,000. The committee had set $57,000,000 as its economy goal, but at the last minute it added about $500,000 to its revenue estimates. The sources of this $500,000 had been considered questionable, but the aldermen later decided they were safe.

The budget will be acted upon by the council on Jan. 6 and will go into effect ten days after its passage.

Economy Saves $3,000,000.

Much ado was made by Thompson aldermen yesterday about a statement by City Controller Schmidt that Mayor Thompson's economy order of last August had resulted in a saving of only $3,000 by department heads. It was revealed that a stenographer in Mr. Schmidt's office had left three ciphers of the figure. He meant to say $300,000.

This was hailed by the Thompsonites as a marvel of economy. Their jubilation, however, was somewhat dimmed by administration critics, who reminded them that 3 per cent salvage, or $1,200,000, was supposed to be saved and that the 1928 budget had been overruled by that amount. The real saving, therefore, was $1,200,000, Mr. Thompson had ordered a saving of $7,000,000.

The critics pointed out also that, despite the widely heralded economy order, the corporate deficit increased from $1,218,548 as of Jan. 1 to $2,418,285. The mayor's order was to have wiped out the deficit altogether.

Expect Fight In Council.

There were further indications yesterday that the new finance committee budget will precipitate a fight on the part of the council. Several department heads have appealed to the mayor for more revenue and other agencies depending upon corporate appropriations are complaining. Among these is the Chicago Plan commission, Favor More Pruning.

Some aldermen are said to favor still more drastic pruning of appropriations for private automobile maintenance, non-working investigators, and other items in order to provide for additional policemen asked by Commissioner W. F. Russell.

"I believe the council will pass the budget as proposed," said Ald. John S. Clark (30th), chairman of the finance committee.

TREASURER OF OHIO INDICTED ON RUM CHARGE

Columbus, O., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Bert E. Eckhart, state treasurer of Ohio, was indicted on ten counts, two of them for conspiracy to violate the state prohibition law; by a United States grand jury here this afternoon in its report to Judge Benson W. Hough.

The indictment came shortly after Buckley was refused the right to appear before the grand jury to testify in his own behalf.

Similar indictments were returned against John Sperber, Cincinnati attorney, and Joseph Sperber, brewmaster of the Jackson Brewing company of Cincinnati. Sperber also was charged with perjury because of his testimony before the grand jury.

Buckley, immediately after learning of the grand jury's action, declared his innocence and characterized the charges as a "cold blooded frameup."

More Indictments Due.

According to District Attorney

Havel E. Mau, additional indictments may be expected within the next few days.

According to the indictment, Buckley is charged with offering John P. Eckhart, state prohibition commissioner for Ohio and part of Indiana, a sum "more than $300 a month for information on federal raids that were being planned against the Cincinnati brewery."

Beer Rakeoff Charges.

Buckley, it is charged, had offered to use his influence with Governor Elect Myer C. Cooper to have Eckhart appointed state prohibition head.

Continuing, the indictment charged that Buckley had received $2.50 a half barrel of beer.

Immunity against prohibition raids was sought by Buckley at a meeting of Gruber, Schrimper and Eckhart in the state treasurer's office on Oct. 13, according to the indictment.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY BROTHER.

Sioux City, Ia., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Dewey Berger, 15, while hunting rabbits by automobile light last night, was accidentally shot in the arm by his brother.

FRENCH CABINET REFUSES TO LET POINCARE RESIGN

Financial Wizard of Nation Stays Premier.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune, Special Service.]
PARIS, Dec. 31.—Premier Raymond Poincare did his best to quit his job today, but his cabinet would not let him. Thus France entered the new year still under the leadership of the grizzled old premier, who has miraculously put the nation's financial house in order in the last two and one-half years and now is tired of office.

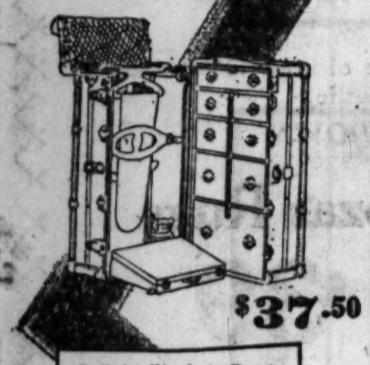

The latest cabinet crisis lasted just five minutes this morning, when M. Poincare called the cabinet members together and announced his intention of resigning.

"When I formed the ministry on Nov. 11, I did it because I did not wish to retard passing the budget, which had to be done before the end of the year," the premier informed his colleagues. "But, Sir, there was my third successive one. The stabilization which I have worked for now seems to be definitely realized and already has proved its solidarity. Therefore, the task which I assumed would be done seems to be accomplished and I propose to submit my resignation as premier of the republic."

But the ministers, who had unanimously opposed him, said last Friday on the question of raising the deputies' salaries, would bear none of it. One after another arose and solemnly informed the premier that his going meant national disaster.

Finally M. Poincare consented to remain at least until the chamber of deputies, the lower houses, on January 8. Then with the session starting just around the corner he will again attempt to give them his vote of confidence on his general political policies, and particularly as regards the reparations and the allies debts.

DURKIN'S FORMER COPY BOYS TO BE HIS PALLBEARERS

Hold Last Rites Tomorrow for Tribune Veteran.

Jimmy Durkin, who hired hundreds of copy boys during his thirty-three years on THE TRIBUNE, is to be carried to his grave tomorrow morning by a corps of his "alumni." His pallbearers are being selected from among the newspaper workers, who in years gone by hoped to be called to the call of "Copy" under Durkin's direction.

Funeral services for the world's greatest copy boy, who died suddenly Sunday morning of an attack of heart trouble, will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, instead of at 10 o'clock, as previously announced. A solemn requiem high mass will be said at Queen of Angels church, at Sunnyside and Claremont avenues.

Friends Send Messages. Scores of messages and telephone calls were received yesterday at Jimmy's home at 4640 North Campbell, expressing the sympathy of his friends in every strata of life to his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Durkin. One such message, accompanied by a generous check, arrived yesterday at THE TRIBUNE. It came from Courtney Riley Cooper, now eminent in the world of journalism, who wired from New York.

Please place this to whatever office tribute you are making to Jimmy Durkin, who brightened considerably my day as a reporter for THE TRIBUNE. Courtney Riley Cooper.

Irish W.H. Is Remembered.

Jimmy Durkin's scant five feet of Irish wit, freckles and sandy thatch of hair were familiar to newspaper men and persons prominent in the theater and in politics throughout the country, with whom he had come in contact during the many years he served faithfully and well as THE TRIBUNE's head copy boy.

It was a credit to Jimmy's personality that they never forgot him, and a proof of his remarkable memory that he forgot none of them. News of his death came as a shock to all these friends, who were legion.

REDS ASK POLES TO ADOPT ORPHAN KELLOGG TREATY

MOSCOW, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The Soviet government today proposed to Poland and Lithuania that, pending ratification of the Kellogg renunciation of war pact by all the powers concerned, they agree to sign a protocol giving the pact immediate effect as between themselves. The note, which was handed to the Polish minister by M. Litvinoff, acting commissar for foreign affairs, was published today in the Moscow press. Pointing out that Poland and Soviet Russia signed the Kellogg pact, and according to the reservations made by the Soviet government in signing that pact and the motive actuating it to adhere to the instrument, the note continues:

"Unfortunately, the entrance into obligation."

effect of the Paris pact is stipulated in Article III, by ratification of the fourteen original signers. During the four months that have elapsed since the day of the signing of the pact not one of the four signatory nations has given its ratification, which, of course, arouses the fear that for a long time the pact may remain a document formally without binding power on any one. Obviously earlier enforcement of the pact between individual states is possible only by their signing of a special supplementary obligation."

3 WEEK
CONTEN

Again Dodge Prison

Indianapolis, Ind.—The Rev. Robert C. Shumake, superintendent of Saloon league, pronounced about three weeks ago to the state that he would be sentenced by the court on a charge for which he was found guilty. Judge Robert C. Shumake, of the Indianapolis District Court, advised him to remain in jail until his briefs, a decision, were filed. The court adjourned to a hearing on the 18th, and Shumake was released on bail. The trial date was set for Jan. 15, and Shumake was released on bail.

SHUMAKER WINS 3 WEEK STAY IN CONTEMPT CASE

Again Dodges 60 Day Prison Term.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 31.—[Special.] The Rev. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, probably will know in about three weeks whether he must go to the state penal farm to serve the sixty day term to which he was sentenced by the Indiana Supreme court on a charge of contempt, and for which he was recommitted Saturday after having been pardoned by Gov. Ed Jackson.

Judge Robert C. Baltzell, in United States District court today, held under advisement, pending the filing of briefs, a decision in Shumaker's application for a habeas corpus order to save him from having to serve the sentence. Judge Baltzell fixed Jan. 18 as the final date for the filing of briefs by Shumaker's counsel in reply to briefs by the state.

Gilliom's Last Day.

Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom, who filed the original contempt citation against Shumaker in 1926, following Shumaker's criticism of Supreme court decisions, was serving his last day as attorney general today, his term expiring at the year end. In vain he opposed delay of a final decision in the Shumaker case until after he had gone out of office.

E. A. Miles, attorney for the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, in his argument dwelt on the question of the Supreme court's original jurisdiction in the case.

Miles asserted that the Supreme court has no power in contempt matters other than that conferred by the state legislature.

that conferred on it by the state legislature.

Gilliom Presented Case.

Gilliom argued that while the federal courts have authority to issue writs of habeas corpus in state cases, the United States Supreme court, in defining this power, has said that it should be used only in peculiarly and extraordinary cases.

U. S. WHOLESALE HOUSES NEEDED IN SO. AMERICA

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Copyright: 1929, By The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD U. S. S. UTAH, Dec. 31.

One of the outstanding needs for the expansion of American business in Latin-America is the establishment of American wholesale houses, with American help, trained in South American customs and languages. At present most of the wholesale trade is being handled by other nations.

In Argentina, for instance, where imports from the United States are greater than from Great Britain, 90 per cent of American goods are handled by British and other Euro-pian houses. Members of President Elect Herbert Hoover's party believe there probably would be less propaganda against the United States if it had American representatives and distributors on the ground. To this policy must be bound the policy of carrying a greater amount of American goods on American ships.

More production in the United States and training the American standard goods has been found a better way than the old efforts of trading in special goods. The American outlet revolves around mass production, particularly automobiles and machinery.

South America Sends Produce.

South America can strike a balance by sending agricultural goods we can not produce. Furnishing capital to South America for productive work is building a demand for our goods. Experts find South America must have foreign capital for public service, agriculture and industry.

The need of South American industry is development. This is taking place in cotton mills, shoe factories, and other places, and probably will continue until these nations become self-supporting so far as necessities are concerned. All the states have protective tariffs. They cannot develop iron and steel industries and in these products are our largest possibilities for expansion. There is much water power, but no coke or coal.

South America, it was found, has made great progress along financial lines in the last five years. The countries with balanced budgets are Venezuela, Brazil, Paraguay, Argentina, Colombia, and Costa Rica. The others are rapidly on the way to making tax equal to expenses are Chile, Peru, Ecuador, and Guatemala. Bolivia, Panama, Nicaragua, Honduras, and Salvador have not yet balanced their budgets.

Financial Basis Firm.

All the South American countries except Peru and Guatemala have stabilized their currencies and the last two are also on the road to sound money. There has been a great advance in the last three years. The situation regarding foreign obligations is more hopeful than it has been in twenty-five years.

Mexico is outside the scope of this review. All the countries are meeting their debts, domestic and foreign, with the exception of Paraguay, Bolivia, Ecuador, Guatemala, and Honduras, and these exceptions are on the road to payments.

The national banking situation was found satisfactory. Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, Colombia, Paraguay, Uruguay, and Venezuela are stable and are reorganizing along modern lines.

Hoover Goes to Bed Early.

U. S. S. Utah, Dec. 31.—(UPI)—The eye of the storm, which will see him close to the Presidency, found Herbert Hoover resting quietly on board the battleship Utah as it ploughed its way northward.

While the rest of the world was celebrating the arrival of 1929, the President Elect, homeward bound from a mission of good will to Latin America, arrived to retire early to be among the few to sleep the old year out and the new year in.

Members of the Hoover party as well as the officers and crew of the dreadnaught spent New Year's eve quietly. Sailors massed on the quarter deck to sing popular songs, while Mr. and Mrs. Hoover watched a motion picture program. They retired immediately after the showing of the films.

ADVANCE PLANS FOR AIR SCHOOL; LAUD PROJECT

Leaders Ready to Pick University Site.

Plans for the establishment of a great flying university in Chicago advanced yesterday. Negotiations for a field, to be equipped with every modern contrivance known to aviation, were reported at a stage where the location of the site somewhere on the outskirts of the city will be announced shortly.

Several prominent Chicagoans who are interested in the air school had, although the Curtis Flying Service, Inc., had decided to locate the branch in Detroit, voiced their enthusiasm yesterday over the prospect. They hailed the university as one of the greatest benefits to Chicago in several years.

Earle H. Reynolds, one of the directors of the Curtis company, declared that Chicago was to be considered on the basis of the site selected as the location for one of the three noted air schools in the country.

Calls It Civic Addition.

"I always have believed that Chicago should have a good flying school," he said. "For two or three years I have been working towards that end. It will be a civic addition."

John D. Hertz, who was foremost in working for establishment of the school here, declared that the present was a logical time to install a school which will train hundreds of competent pilots.

"Any man who has grown up with Chicago and who owes his fortune to it should be anxious to see Chicago do its duty. This may be the right to expect a prominent position in United States aviation. The next two or three years will be big ones for aviation.

Encouraging to Aviation.

"When a group of leading citizens make it possible through their money and influence for young men to obtain reliable instruction in flying, it should be an encouragement to the public in the future of aviation.

"Col. R. R. McCormick was really responsible for the establishment of this school. He suggested it to me and outlined the desirability of the project. Earle H. Reynolds was the chairman who saw the possibilities of flying years ago, and without his assistance we would have got nowhere. All members of the group who helped to furnish a Chicago field for the school are to be praised for their civic enterprise."

Means Much to City.

Elas H. Strawn, another who agreed to promote the school to the extent of providing a field, said: "Bringing of a finely equipped, reliable air school to this city is bound to mean much to the future of Chicago. I became interested in the plan through Mr. Hertz and I saw his enthusiasm and those of the others who were active in promoting the project will result in advancing this city very far towards becoming the aviation center of the United States."

Maj. Reed Landis, secretary of the Chicago aero commission, declared that "everybody in aviation realizes schools. Chicago is fortunate to obtain the biggest job ahead of us is that one which will stand high."

DROPS MURDE
CHARGE AGAIN
VICTOR HUND

Carbondale, Ill., Dec. 31.—State's Attorney Fletcher L. Lewis announced that he had the charge of murder against Victor H. Hundley, 39, Carbondale, in the slaying of his father, Hundley, 75, and his stepmother, Mrs. Hundley, 57, Dec. 29. Lewis said that since the jury failed to hold Hundley for trial investigation and that he failed to discover incriminating evidence against Hundley, that he was unable to spend money ever to convince a jury of Lewis' desire to have the man responsible for the slaying come to trial.

Hundley was arrested on the night of the funeral. Following that, he was under surveillance by police for the night following the murder. Sheriff Flanigan, Chief of Police,拘捕了他，但警方未能定罪。

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO

These Fashions Have the Verve of the South

To take up the novel pleasures of the Southland are modes as adventuresome in chic and as smart in effect as the Land of Sun Tan could suggest.

These new fashions have been assembled with a sure and fine understanding of the really important in style—and are presented against a tropic background.

The coat is a classic touch to almost any frock this year, and it is a little shorter, perhaps, and worn open—quite often—to show the fascinating new colors and line influenced by the last brilliant season of the Riviera.

The sports suit, sketched, has a sweater of jersey covered with an interestingly knitted wool lace in red, yellow, and white. The skirt and jacket are yellow silk crepe. Sports Section. $65.

A sports frock is lovely in beautifully blended colors worked in embroidered motifs. Soft pastel shades—every tone that blends with yellow or flesh silk crepe. In white the frock is embroidered in pastel colors. Sketched at the right. $85.

New materials are executed in new ways—silk kasha as an ensemble for women and misses. The frock is natural shade piped in dark blue and monogrammed in red and blue—while the coat has chic conventional designs printed in red and blue. At left. $75.

SILHOUETTE Gives Finesse to the South-Going- Hat

Presenting the newest details of the Southland hat with the technique that is inimitable with Silhouette—a simple felt becomes a hat of decided distinction.

Even a tiny brim is manipulated to frame the face. Brims at the side and in back leave the forehead exposed.

Black, pastel shades and white. All headsizes. The hat sketched is $15. Others from $15 to $25.

HAWKS RETURN TO HOME RINK TO PLAY COUGARS

Meet Detroit Tonight at the Coliseum.

Returning from their eastern trip on which the Chicago Blackhawks gave more evidence of playing first class hockey than they have had this season, Manager Herb Gardner's youngsters start out on their home ice at the Coliseum tonight in a mood for vengeance over the Detroit Cougars. After beating Boston and the New York Americans, the Hawks fell before the Cougars Sunday night, 3 to 1. Tonight they get a second chance to upset the second place Detroiters.

Unquestionably, the chance to practice the art of revenge has improved the team play of the Hawks and put them in better condition. Vito, the kid center, who has been a sensation for his first season in major league hockey, steadily is improving and the baby of the team, 19 year old "Mush" March, who has been starting at right wing with Ripley, is finding himself. Ty Arbour or Capt. Dick Irvin will play the left wing, is finding the steady influence of an older head.

Gottselig Shines in Team Play.

Though somewhat overlooked in contrast with Ripley's speed and stick handling, Johnny Gottselig has been working into the team play, especially developing a passing game with Irvin. These two seem to sense each other's moves and handle the puck in passing better than any other pair on the team, while Chuck Gardner has been holding a pace in net minding which is ranking him as one of the stars of the league.

At Detroit's net, however, is another youngster, Dolly Dolson, who is making a name for himself as a goal tender.

Tranb, Hay Former Hawks.

Two of the Cougars are no strangers to Chicago. Puss Traub, defense, and George Hay, left wing, have worn the Blackhawks' uniform.

Two of Chicago's players will be missing, Val Hoefflinger, young wing, has been sent to Duluth for further seasoning, and Alex McKinnon, another wing, is out temporarily with a twisted shoulder.

COACHES FIND A MOTE IN OTHER FELLOW'S EYE

Overlook, It Seems, the Beam in Their Own.

have been assuming more and more control over the lucrative game of football and have been growing a mite greedy.

They reflect that a successful team draws in large receipts and therefore natural temptation to do all possible profit out in successful years which accounts for the variety of unscrupulous models of football pants, doublets, jerseys, helmets and the outfit of watery syndicate articles signed by coaches during the playing season.

Up to the present this type of journalism has been pretty bad, because the boys find it necessary to comment on the other's critics and their personal friends and then begin to criticize a brother in the craft. I suppose the natural development will find them hoarding the actual news of their teams as though this, too, were their personal property. There is no question that the coach of a successful team is entitled to a certain degree of prestige, but it will not be difficult to see that the achievements leaves off and the achievements of the players begin. It just looks bad for a coach to capitalize a reputation in the same ways that heavyweight champion fighters, ball players and professional amateurs do tennis go after the last dollars.

Football has always seemed better than that any way he may be selling prestige which properly belongs to the team.

Another Problem Ducked.

Apparently the coaches' union was still too busy with its own ambitions to do anything about the only important reprobation to their game, namely the employment of part time coal miners, teamsters' helpers and other persons not truly collegiate in inter-collegiate games. Could not the story about the survival of amateur practices which could be abated if they were of a mind to share them. Here, again they seem to be sparing the feelings of their colleagues to the detriment of their own game. The coaches' union is now the strongest influence in football and no member could be forced to do anything to play, but have great the alumni rights which might be if he simply refused to do so. Of course, he might lose his job, but the first coach to quit for such reasons would receive a great volume of swell publicity and could walk into a better one. They have assumed control of the game, but haven't assumed a corresponding sense of responsibility.

England's Foreign Office Dictates Sports Policy

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

London, Dec. 31.—The British foreign office is taking particular interest in British sport as well as foreign affairs.

Germany's invitation to England to attend the football tournament to be held in Berlin next Sunday has been refused by F. J. Wall, secretary of the football association, who explains that there are so many sporting figures abroad this season there is not sufficient first class players to supply a team to Germany.

Mr. Wall declares: "The foreign office urged us to play first class football, but we did not do so. It is essential that British prowess shall be well maintained abroad."

The foreign office yesterday declared Mr. Wall's statement to be correct.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

THE New Year, in reality only the coming of one day after another following a noisy night of celebration, gives us all the feeling of getting a new start. We pause to think, and with at least mental resolutions that what was functioning smoothly in the old year shall be continued, and that what was not functioning smoothly shall be remedied. Thus advent of the New Year serves a useful purpose.

The Wake does not break formal New Year's resolutions, for we do not make any. There is much that was good in any year that passes and there is much that was futile. If one increases the good and decreases the futile, that is progress.

Most of us are cast in such humble roles that we do not expect as individuals to exert great influence. But our efforts for betterment on our part serve to help considerably what is known as the public. The world has been pretty good to most of us in 1928. We owe that much return in 1929.

High Education.
Family Friend—What will your son be when he gets out of college?
Disappointed Parent—An old man.

This Wake, Conducted by Harvey Woodruff, Wishes All Helpers and Readers a Happy New Year!

Way Back When:

the electric lights came.
Father lit his pipe from the kitchen fire

When coal oil lamps came in;
Mother filled vase with new paper, tapes,
which were prettier than ever.
Father sat around in wooden box

I remember, yes, I remember.
When we had to go to school,
Santa brought me some red topped boots.
There were no exfoliates then.

New Yearograms.
New Year's resolutions are used in some, how do they get broken?

We now are at the front door of 1929. College students home for the holidays aren't truly collegiate in inter-collegiate games. Could not the story about the survival of amateur practices which could be abated if they were of a mind to share them. Here, again they seem to be sparing the feelings of their colleagues to the detriment of their own game. The coaches' union is now the strongest influence in football and no member could be forced to do anything to play, but have great the alumni rights which might be if he simply refused to do so. Of course, he might lose his job, but the first coach to quit for such reasons would receive a great volume of swell publicity and could walk into a better one. They have assumed control of the game, but haven't assumed a corresponding sense of responsibility.

Object Department.

I object to the fellow who buys himself a new radio for Christmas and feels it is his duty to entertain the neighborhood with it—extra objections valid when he happens to live in the flat above.

La Gue.

Do You Remember Way Back When:

An old chap paraded up State street with a large round tin sign on his rusty coat lapel proclaiming that he was "John the Baptist," and when he met a lady who perfume or dress he did not approve he held his nose?

THE BUFFER
By ALICE HEGAN RICE

SYNOPSIS

Hickory Hill has been the home of the Freers for generations. Cynthia Freer, chained to it by family obligations and compelled to her mother never to leave her, strains at her mother's red bonds to be free of the place and all it entails.

Cynthia's mother returns to Hickory Hill after a day's absence in the city. She inquires anxiously of her daughter whether or not her son Barney is at home. Cynthia replies that he hasn't come in yet.

INSTALLMENT II.
A FAMILY PROBLEM.

Cynthia and her mother were in the hall now, tiptoeing past Miss Lizzie's door and cautiously ascending the narrow stairs.

"He promised me faithfully he'd come home tonight," whispered Mrs. Freer, all the gayety gone from her voice.

"Never mind. He may get in yet," said Cynthia, but her voice lacked conviction. "Ethel and Fred were lambs. They got in by ten."

"Did you wash Ethel's hair for her? Poor darling, she never gets the soap out."

"Yes, and I finished her lawn dress."

"That's good. And your Aunt Lizzie's digitalis and malted milk at nine o'clock?"

"Yes, yes. I looked after everything. Now do tell me what kept you."

"Everything. I've so much to tell you that I scarcely know where to begin. Your Aunt Dora is threatened with appendicitis. I knew something would happen when she broke her silver mirror! And Claire Kelsey has left her husband; she cabled her father today that she was sailing for home on the tenth."

"For heaven's sake, did you ever know such a family as ours for having operations and getting divorces and things?"

"Why, Cynthia, we've never had a divorce. That was the trouble with Claire's mother. If that had let her get a divorce on perfectly just grounds she wouldn't have run away and disgraced the family the way she did."

"Well, I don't know, but from what your Uncle Julius says they have been separated most of the time since they were married three years ago. The question now is, where she is going to stay."

Cynthia, perched on the sofa, her legs tucked under to protect them from the mosquitoes, took instant alarm.

"They surely aren't thinking of landing her and those two babies on us, are they?"

"I'm afraid they are," admitted Mrs. Freer. "We have been discussing it all afternoon at your Uncle Herbert's. He can't have her come there because of your Aunt Dora's illness, and your Uncle Julius has only his one room to offer."

"Well, what's the matter with Aunt Maria Lewis? They have a guest room that is never occupied."

"Sister Ria says the babies in the house would upset Mr. Lewis' digestion. Besides she doesn't think Claire's influence would be good for the boys."

"They aren't thinking of landing her and those two babies on us, are they?"

Cynthia laughed. "I suppose our digestion and morale don't matter! Has Aunt Lizzie agreed to their coming here?"

"No, I'm not sure she will. She always stands by in time of trouble."

"You mean she lays by, and we do the standing."

"No, Cynthia, I can't get you to talk like that. Wouldn't you rather bear a burden than be one?"

"I don't know," said Cynthia; "some burdens have a darned easy time of it."

"Well, you must not forget that this is Miss Lizzie's home as well as ours. Don't you think it's wonderful how she has lain there on her sick bed all these years and managed the estate and paid all the bills and everything?"

"Yes, I do. But after all she pays our bills with our money. If Grandfather Freer hadn't left the estate in trust to her, she wouldn't have us all on her hands, like a bunch of chickens with their feet tied together, squawking to get loose."

"But Miss Lizzie says it's a sacred obligation. All she lives for is her family."

"O, I know she does things for us, but then she wants to own us. I'd rather get out and be independent."

"But Cynthia, dear, we can't do what we like in this world: we've got to do our duty. Why, I was only eighteen when I came here to live. I was simply terrified by the family. They swallowed us up, living together like this, discussing everything, deciding everything. I used to think if I could just get away for a month alone with your dear papa, it would be heaven. But I never did. If I stood it all these years, surely you—"

"Cynthia, I can't get you to talk like that. That she had not married Barnett Freer, that she had no obligations in the way of children to anchor her, and that she was in no way reconciled to being swallowed up. But it was always hard for her to take issue with her mother."

"You've no idea what it was like when your grandmother and grandfather were living," went on Mrs. Freer. "They were all so stern and practical, and they thought I was frivolous and extravagant and not domestic."

"Yet they let you do most of the work!" cried Cynthia indignantly. "It makes me see red whenever I feel the callous places in their hands! I only hope you'll be a gay little devil in the next world, you've been such a patient saint this one!"

"I can't help it to complain," said her mother. "I love your papa's people. They are always the only ones," Cynthia flared out indignantly, her eyes blazing. "Hickory Hill is a family dumping ground! When it isn't a home for the aged and infirm, it's a home for inebriates. Now it's going to be a home for orphans and grass widows!"

Mrs. Freer held out the hopeful suggestion that perhaps Claire would marry again.

"She probably will," said Cynthia, "lots of times, but it will be some years before the right man comes. They aren't two yet, that gives them some twenty years to visit us!"

"Poor little darlings!" said Mrs. Freer. "What a beast their father must be to desert them. And he's a doctor, too!"

"But I thought you said it was Claire who was leaving him, and that even if they are divorced he insists on having the children six months out of each year."

"Yes," said Mrs. Freer vaguely, "I believe that's it. Listen! Isn't that a machine turning in our gate?"

"No, it has gone by. What were we talking of? O, yes! The divorce, is that still to pay her alimony?"

"I believe it is."

"I hope it is a good one," Cynthia sighed. "We are certainly in no position to help her. If I didn't sell a story occasionally, you and Ethel and I would be toddling around in our stocking feet!"

"But I thought you said it was Claire who was leaving him, and that even if they are divorced he insists on having the children six months out of each year."

"I'm the good all right," agreed Cynthia. "That last story I sold was trashy I wouldn't sign my name to it."

"But your Aunt Dora thinks it's lovely! She has pasted it in her scrap-book."

"Entombed in platinettes where it belongs," said Cynthia. "How did she know it was mine?"

"I told her. I am so proud every time you get anything published that I just have to tell!"

"But I'm not doing anything to be proud of. I sometimes think I'd like to do what Luther did, throw my ink pot at the devil. Only the devil always seems to be throwing the ink pot at me. I'd rather never write again than to publish anything as silly as that last story!"

"But you've got a hundred dollars for it. I don't know how we could ever have paid Barney's fine if it hadn't been for that check."

Cynthia's fine brows contracted. "Did Aunt Lizzie never find out about that?"

"No, indeed, and I hope she never will. He's the idol of her heart. And he's a darling, Cynthia. Except for that one little weakness. . . . Why, I don't know a boy—"

"He's twenty-three," Cynthia reminded her. "He and Ethel seem young because they've never been allowed to develop any mental or moral muscles. Whenever they try to climb out of the nest they get pulled back."

Mrs. Freer sighed. "But they want to do things that are bad for them, and I can't stand for them to be hurt. I just wish I could bear every single trouble for them."

"I just want any one to bear my troubles for me," said Cynthia.

"But you are different, dearest. You have always been strong and self-reliant and gifted. I often think what a wonderful wife you would make."

"Page Aunt Dora!" cried Cynthia, "It's about time for her to find a new prospect."

For two years now Mrs. Herbert Freer had done her full duty by Cynthia.

At regular intervals she rounded up an eight-year-old boy to have him dismissed with cursory indifference, with an early impression of man was not conducive to hero worship. Grandfather Freer is stern and implacable; Uncle Marcus just like him. Uncle Julius large, fair and lazy, a sort of domineering Don Juan. Uncle Charlie, critical, sensitive, effeminate, and Uncle Lewis who was only tolerated because he was Aunt Maria's husband.

Almond Meal Is One of the Oldest 'n' Best
Facial Favorites

In spite of the modern discoveries in skin care, and there are endless numbers of them, you still find a few of the old, old favorites holding sway. Almond meal, for one, is a beauty secret dating further back than your grandmother's grandmother. Maybe further back than that. At any rate, one of those tender skinned girls hanging to the top branches of your family tree found that almond meal was exactly what she needed for protection against the cold, damp, raw and windy weather. She found out that chapping and roughness of the skin was prevented by its use to a pleasing degree, also that it acted as a cleanser, although she might have had a few more reservations about soap than our modern girls have.

One of her neighbors, who ornaments the branches of another family tree, may have believed as firmly in the oatmeal bath. And still another girl in her set might have made her little cheesecloth bags and filled them with a cup of ordinary rolled oats and added half a cup of almond meal.

In some of our beauty salons you can get an almond meal facial. The experience is not unlike any other pack. In our salons the pack is made with three heaping teaspoons of almond meal to which an astringent is added to make it into a creamy paste. In a separate dish a solution is made of one teaspoon of almond meal to which half a cup of an astringent and a few drops of oil of lavender are added.

A massage is first given with a cleansing cream. Then a heavy massage cream is patted on and the usual facial movements are done for a couple of minutes. Then you're ready for the pack. The pack is applied. The gauze is fitted over face and neck. Before this, however, the eyes are covered with little pads of medicated cotton saturated with an eye lotion.

Then the almond meal paste is "painted" over the gauze and allowed to remain on ten minutes. The paste is kept moist with the solution described. After removing the gauze a piece of medicated cotton saturated with an astringent is wiped over the skin.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Go Out with Others.

"Dear Miss Blake: I go with a fellow steady. I don't care much for him, but love another fellow. The fellow never asked me to go out but told his sister to ask me. What should I do?" Boys Eyes.

You're spoiling your chance with other boys by continuing to go steadily with him.

Not a Person's Privilege.

"Dear Miss Blake: I was married but took a new man when he was called away to duty. He is gone almost a year and a half now, do you think it is all right for me to go with other male friends? Ross."

Then the almond meal paste is "painted" over the gauze and allowed without or find the way, themselves, to earn them.

The last "Broken hearted" one to be heard from is the mother of a 23 year old boy, for whom she has pinched and saved, toiled and struggled all his life and now is doing it to pay for an automobile, which he uses every evening to take his girl out for a jaunt for mother. In fact, the car isn't quite good enough for his latest girl, so mother is being pestered to turn in the old one and get a later model.

Thinking this story of course, you see years of lavish indulgence on the part of the mother. That's not half the tragedy, however.

"I have no money ahead and I'm getting on in years. He has got all from me for a good time."

The poor woman believes she has been a good mother. She says so. She's given the boy everything he wanted. "He'll marry, one of these days, no doubt," she adds, "and where will he? Not wanted in his home, I'll wager."

And right her wager will prove to be. Ten to one he'll try to foist his matrimonial burdens on her, too. And presently old age will descend upon an unwanted lonely, heart-broken old soul whom no one will be anxious to house and feed, and least of all the ingrate boy of her own creation.

It's food for thought, you mothers who look for repayment in your later years. Parasitic sons aren't born—they're made by the too indulgent parent.

Ruth Brady Becomes Bride of Heir to British Earldom

Bernardsville, N. J., Dec. 31.—[Special]—Miss Ruth Brady, second daughter of the late James Cox Brady, was married to the Hon. Michael Scott, heir presumptive to the earldom of Eldon this morning in the Church of the Holy Perpetual Help here. Owing to the limited nature of the church only relatives and intimate friends were asked to the ceremony, which was performed by the Very Rev. Adrian Weld-Blundell. A nuptial mass followed. The Right Rev. Thomas J. Walsh, D. D., bishop of Newark, pronounced the benediction and also read a cable from Cardinal Joseph Conaty conveying the congratulations of Pope Pius XI to the young couple and bestowing the papal blessing upon them.

2 Engagements Today of Interest Here and in the East as Well

BY THALIA

Two engagements of both eastern and local interest are being announced this New Year's day. Mr. and Mrs. Everett James Harrington of Newton Center, Mass., are making known at a ten they will give today at their residence the engagement of their daughter, Phyllis Louise, to Arnold Dale Moulton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eager Mason of Highland Park, and Mrs. Susan R. Lord of Chelmsford and Dorset, Vt., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Emily Davis Lord, to Russell Lee Post of Hartford, Conn., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Strong Post.

Young Mr. Mason, who was graduated in 1927 from the University of Pennsylvania, where he was a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity and the Sphinx honorary letter society, has been in the east for most of the time since his graduation. He makes the fourth generation descending from Kerfoot and Mason families, among Chicago's earliest settlers, to choose his bride in the east and bring her to the middle west. Miss Harrington was graduated from the Misses Allens' school in West Newton.

Of the other alliance, Miss Lord was graduated from Misses Allens' school in Simsbury, Conn., and Mr. Post was graduated from Yale in the class of 1927, and is a member of Chi Psi fraternity and Scull and Bones. Miss Lord is the niece of Mrs. Alvin C. McCord and of Samuel D. Rowe. She and her mother are now at "Einsiegh," their place at Dorset.

The party which Mr. and Mrs. Palmer gave at their residence last evening for their daughter, Miss Berta Palmer, was one of the largest of the new festivities with which the new year was welcomed. Miss Palmer wore a frock of silver and white lace. The ball was preceded by a dinner dance given at the Casino by Mrs. Mark Skinner Willing for Miss Eleanor McCormick, with a program of songs by Lucretia Bori. Miss McCormick wore a bouffant frock of white tulie trimmed in silver and a corsage of orchids.

Four debuts, a wedding, and a number of New Year's day "at homes" were among the attention of society today. The wedding of Miss Ellen Ballinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lees Ballinger of Evanston, to Robert M. Roloson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Roloson of Evanston, will take place at 10 o'clock this morning at St. Mark's chapel. In the afternoon two north shore debutantes, Miss Harriet Leonard, daughter of Mr. R. Leonard, and Miss Margaret Badgley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harve G. Badgley, will be presented to society at a dinner to be given by their respective parents at their residences in Winnetka. At the same time Mr. and Mrs. Adolph S. Boericke will introduce their daughters, Miss Helen and Miss Marjorie Boericke, at a reception at their residence at 524 Melrose street.

The evening's diversions include a supper dance to be given at the Pe-trushka club by the four McCormick sisters. Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Miss Walter Ayer, and Miss Mildred McCormick, and a buffet supper dance by the Alister H. McCormicks and Miss Mary Dale Owen for Miss Eleanor McCormick and Miss Betty Borden at the McCormick residence at 631 Rush street. And for the youths and girls home from boarding schools and colleges there will be the Junior Assembly at the Fortnightly.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacLeish, who are spending the first Christmas in Winnetka, having come recently from Philadelphia, are giving a dinner reception this afternoon at their residence at 605 Elm street for Mrs. MacLeish's mother, Mrs. Joseph B. McCall of Philadelphia, who is visiting them.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Bai Lihme are occupying the Palm Beach villa of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Clafin for the winter, and have with them their sons Harold, a Yale student, and Edward, who is at St. George's. The Lihme's and Princesses Edward and Louise (Anita Lihme) are to be with them later in the season.

Society at the Opera

"Norma" was gala opera, the revival of Chicago's favorite, appearing for the first time this season, and an equally festive audience for New Year's eve at the Auditorium last night. Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, who wore black brocaded velvet with her Mrs. and Misses Dorothy and Rosemary Baur, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus S. Peabody, Miss Caroline Kirkland, Hermann Waldeck, and Edwin D. Krenn.

Mr. D. Mark Cummings entertained a "dove" party including Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Mrs. Ethel Richardson, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Philip E. Hoyt, and Mrs. Edward R. Pease, and Mrs. and Mr. G. M. Gann, the latter wearing pale green beaded in brilliant, were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred H. Granger, Mrs. Charles Deering, and Alfred Cowles, and guests of Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson were Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster and Dr. D. B. Phenister of the University of Chicago and Mrs. Phenister.

Occupying the Joseph P. Rend box were Mrs. Rend, Miss Helen Rend, Miss Dorothy Rend, Mrs. J. V. Clarke, Kelllogg Gary, and Thomas Wheelock. Mrs. Edward A. Leight was unable to be present because of illness, and her box was occupied by Prof. A. B. Faust of Cornell University, Mrs. Faust, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hough, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew R. Sturtevant.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Robert P. Lamont, her daughter, Miss Gertrude Lamont, and James Breasted were in the Monday night box the Lamonts and the Meekers share, and Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Teter, Henry H. Hilton, and Miss Katherine Hilton occupied the Teter-Hilton box.

The Cyrus Hall McCormick lent their box to Miss Eloise Tremaine of Ferry Hall, Lake Forest, Mr. and Mrs. Judson also in Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth's box, and Mrs. Alicia Chauvenet was hostess in the William O. Goodman box.

Others in the box circle included Mrs. Samuel Insull, who was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde. Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth, Mr. and Mrs. Chauvenet Blair, Miss Ricardo de Soto, and Mrs. Walter Borden.

BRIDE-TO-BE

Miss Phyllis Louise Harrington.

The engagement of Miss Phyllis Louise Harrington to Arnold Dale Moulton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eager Mason of Highland Park, is to be announced this afternoon by Miss Harrington's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett James Harrington, at their residence in Newton Center, Mass.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Chicago Tribune Press Service.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The secretary of state and his family, the dinner guests last night of the former assistant attorney general and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, who entertained in celebration of the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. Kellogg and of Mr. Ellis, a fugitive who the two families have observed for many years. Mrs. Austin of Minnesota, sister of the secretary and grandmother of the Kelloggs, was in the same part of the island as the live oak timbers which were used in the construction of the old frigate Constitution.

A gain of $7,284,870 brought the total amount of gifts to $71,612,221.86, according to the report. Over $6,885,000 were received in gifts. The annual budget was $5,591,034.47, and expenditures were $326,500 more than those of five years ago.

The chief justice and Mrs. Taft have had as their holiday guests their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Johnson Manning of Bryn Mawr, and their daughter Helen Manning.

The commercial secretary of the British embassy and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart returned here yesterday after spending Christmas in Chicago, and will celebrate the coming of the New Year with Mr. McCormick-Goodhart's mother at Langley Park, here home in a suburb of Chicago.

The managing controller of the currency and Mrs. Joseph McIntosh were the guests for whom Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Drury entertained a company at dinner tonight, and a larger one for dancing afterwards in their home at 1721 Rhode Island avenue.

Wild Turkeys Dodge
President, Who Hunts
Them in Georgia

Sapelo Island, Ga., Dec. 31.—(P)—President and Mrs. Coolidge were back at the island home of Howard E. Coffin tonight for a quiet restful New Year's eve. In view of many activities which began for the President shortly after sunrise.

Meanwhile, preparations were being made for an early return to Washington, and a resumption of the duties of the executive office. The President has been enjoying his mid-winter vacation, but feels that with congress recessing Saturday he should be back in the national capital some time the previous day.

The prospect of a wild turkey hunt led Mr. Coolidge to arise this morning before it was light. The night had been spent on board the Gophin yacht, the Zapala, which was docked at the mainland hunting lodge and game preserve of his home.

Mr. Coolidge himself was a member of the party which accompanied the chief executive into the woodlands of the game preserve and was as much disappointed as his husband when an hour's hunting failed to produce any game.

Returning to the hunting lodge the party breakfasted and then reboarded the Zapala and cruised to St. Simons island, where yesterday they attended church and inspected places of historic interest.

The occasion of today's visit was the deduction of what now is known as the "President Coolidge Oak," on St. Simons island which is separated from St. Simons by causeway built for military purposes during the Civil War.

It is believed the tree came from the same part of the island as the live oak timbers which were used in the construction of the old frigate Constitution.

New Year Begins with U. S. at Peak of Prosperity

ERA OF TOWERS SPURRED 1928 REALTY BOOM

Chicago's Sky Line Soared Upward.

BY AL CHASE.

(Real Estate Editor.) Taking a backward glance over the realty market for the preceding twelve months used to mean a story devoted mostly to subdivision activities and the balance to building data. But there came the blowup of the Florida boom and the resultant slowdown of the Chicago subdivision whoopee. At about the same time the height line was taken off Chicago buildings and a tower boom burst into spectacular being.

As a result a real estate editor, in commenting on the realty market for 1928, must talk mostly about building, with some of what's in his ballast.

Building Boom Record One.

Never in the history of Chicago has such an imposing list of impressive structures been opened to the public as has been during 1928. And never in this city's history has there been such a gigantic building program, or have such magnificent offices been under way as are now being rushed along to the tune of tens of millions of dollars.

During 1928 the list of the most important buildings completed, with many of them already under way, includes the following: 321 North Michigan avenue building, 100 North La Salle building, Mercantile Exchange building, State Bank of Chicago, Chicago Evening Post building, Engineering building, Midland club, Insurance Exchange annex, Franklin-Franklin building, Stop and Shop building, and a score of others.

Under construction is a still more imposing list; one that will make a record broken for the structures completed. During the next twelve months the gigantic structures will be ready for tenants than ever before in a year of Chicago's active building.

Merchandise Mart Biggest.

Work is well under way on what will be the largest building in the world to date. This is the Merchandise Mart, a huge structure being built by the Marshall Field interests at Wells, Kinzie, Orleans, and the river.

This title of "world's largest" never is won by a single structure. All previous plans are being completed for a seventy-five story Goliath which those interested in the project state will be under way early next spring. This is Chicago Tower, or Apparel Mart, the south bank of the river, east of Michigan avenue. This building, it is claimed, will be larger than the Merchandise Mart.

Tonnage Increased.

This award originally was for 45,000 tons, the largest single building award ever placed in the Chicago district. Other large awards were 19,000 tons for the Chicago Civic Opera building and the Wrigley building, the Palmolive building, Steuben building, the Forest Park building, the Madison Athletic club, the Madison-Carr building and several others.

Marketing of structural steel for buildings in the Chicago district and the north and south suburbs of the city territories reached new peaks. The structural steel for the Chicago Merchandise Mart went to an eastern steel works, but a considerable portion was turned over to Chicago district fabricating shops.

Point to the largely increased demand for farm machinery. Automobile makers have enjoyed an exceptional twelve months. Another industry that has produced in very large volume is steel and iron.

Structural industries are still among the laggards, mostly for reasons special to individual lines of business. By far the greater number of leading industries, however, have prospered, and their activities have meant continued large employment of labor at good wages, with the result that the purchasing power of the people has been maintained and augmented.

Merchant pig iron producers are entering the year under more favorable conditions than at any time in the history of the industry. Stocks of pig iron everywhere are low. Pig iron marketed in the Chicago market reached a new high mark in 1928 in 1928.

The iron and steel industry is not likely to lose its momentum soon.

PROSPECTS SEEN BRIGHT FOR OIL TRADE IN 1929

Prospects at the beginning of 1929 are not encouraging for the petroleum industry, declared W. G. Skelly, president of the Skelly Oil company, reviewing the outlook for the year.

All indications, he continued, are that the leading interests will continue and elaborate the policies of greater efficiency and curtailed drilling which accounted for much of the increase in profit in the oil industry during 1928.

"Proration and drilling controls as carried out on a rather extensive scale by the larger oil companies in Oklahoma and Texas," said Mr. Skelly, "have proved their worth to the few skeptics we had in the oil business. Undoubtedly the oil industry is now absolutely united upon the subject of sane development of new fields."

Metal Industry Reports

1928 Year of Progress

Excellent results have been achieved by the metal industry of the United States in the year just ended, says Win Vogelang, president of the national metal exchange. Consumption has been large and the level of prices for most metals has been such that producers and manufacturers could make a fair profit. Reports of general business conditions promise continued prosperity in 1929, he adds, in which the metal industry may reasonably expect to share.

British Steel Companies

Merge in Corporation

London, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The English Steel corporation, a combination of two of the largest British companies in that industry, came into formal existence today when shareholders of Cammell, Laird and company ratified the proposed agreement with Vickers-Armstrongs company. The result will be a company capitalized at more than $200,000,000. This is unquestionably the largest realty transaction in the history of Chicago.

The year 1928 has had one breathtaking realty deal. This was the recent sale of the Continental National bank building to the Utilities Power and Light corporation. The price was undisclosed, but it is understood to have been within a million or so of $200,000,000. This is unquestionably the largest realty transaction in the history of Chicago.

Steel Output 50 Million Tons a High Record

BY FRED B. PLETTCHER.
(Associate Editor Iron Trade Review.)

Appraisal of the iron and steel industry in 1928 discloses a number of high spots, in addition to a record output and consumption, that make the year outstanding.

Steel ingot production, surpassing the previous banner year, 1926, by more than 7 per cent, was nearly 15 per cent ahead of 1927. With the volume for December still to be determined finally, a new record is assured by a safe margin.

Output of only a little more than 4,000,000 tons in December was necessary for ingot production to pass the 50,000,000 ton mark for the first time.

Broader uses of virtually all classes of rolled steel were found during the year. In the Chicago district the growing demand for steel bar mill products, which go into a diversity of metal working channels, was extended to automotive, tractors, road building industries and in the manufacture of farm implements, tractors, road building equipment, automobiles, and automotive accessories.

Oil Company Takes Steel.

The oil storage programs in the southwest oil country and on the Pacific coast took tonnage of steel plates for tanks and pipe lines several times in excess of recent years. Blue annealed steel sheets are being used more widely in manufacturing, particularly in a radius of 100 miles of Chicago. Each of the four major steel companies—Inland, railroads, building, the automotive and the oil and gas industries— requisitioned more steel than in 1927. Purchases of steel rails for 1929 laying were heavier than for 1928 programs.

Net profits of several steel producers will be the largest of any post-war year. In the first quarter of 1928 there is another of great productive activity and low earnings again was manifest. Prices, however, were established on a firmer basis, particularly during the latter half of 1928, when the industry moved into a stronger swing.

District Functions Independently.

Old basing point customs lost some of their significance in steel marketing. The Chicago district, while influenced by competition from Pittsburgh territory, nevertheless has been enabled to function more independently as to steel prices than at any time since the days of Pittsburgh plus. Rises and dips in demands were more pronounced in western territories than in other producing centers. A large eastern independent adopted some new f. o. b. mill basing points, replacing Pittsburgh base quotations.

Marketing of structural steel for buildings in the Chicago district and the north and south suburbs of the city territories reached new peaks. The structural steel for the Chicago Merchandise Mart went to an eastern steel works, but a considerable portion was turned over to Chicago district fabricating shops.

Structural industries are still among the laggards, mostly for reasons special to individual lines of business. By far the greater number of leading industries, however, have prospered, and their activities have meant continued large employment of labor at good wages, with the result that the purchasing power of the people has been maintained and augmented.

Merchandise Mart Biggest.

Work is well under way on what will be the largest building in the world to date. This is the Merchandise Mart, a huge structure being built by the Marshall Field interests at Wells, Kinzie, Orleans, and the river.

This title of "world's largest" never is won by a single structure. All previous plans are being completed for a seventy-five story Goliath which those interested in the project state will be under way early next spring. This is Chicago Tower, or Apparel Mart, the south bank of the river, east of Michigan avenue. This building, it is claimed, will be larger than the Merchandise Mart.

near future, there is no disposition to depart from conservatism. Even with good business, inflation is being guarded against. Neither manufacturers nor merchants are expanding inventories unduly. Efficient manufacturing and transportation make it unnecessary for merchants to anticipate more than reasonable future needs. Both production and forward orders are being held closely to actual demand.

Larger Consolidations Expected.

There is small prospect for any increase in commodity prices. Keen competition in manufacturing and merchandising tends to keep prices down, while at the same time profits will continue to depend even more on greater efficiency in production and distribution. Toward this end larger consolidations in industry may be expected.

One factor that business may have to contend with during the early part of this year is the higher cost of borrowed capital. Money rates have been relatively high for several months as the result of the vast amount of credit absorbed by speculation. But stabilization of stock market prices or possibly a gradual decline in prices and contraction in the volume of trading

RECORDER'S OFFICE HANDLES BILLION IN REAL ESTATE DEALS

More than a half million documents were handled and more than 40,000 searches of property records were made in 1928 by the recorder's office, it has learned from the annual report of Recorder Clayton F. Smith yesterday.

The aggregate value of realty dealings under the Torrens system is approximately $250,000,000 yearly and the value of transfers handled in the recorder's office is $750,000,000 making a total above the billion dollar mark, said Mr. Smith.

The number of documents handled is increasing yearly. The number of tax searches made in other offices aggregates 40,000 a year. The number of folios written or photographed is more than 5,500,000.

may release considerable credit for commercial purposes. Firm money rates, however, are not as unusual evils. Although imposing some restraint on business, they tend to discourage speculation and undue expansion. Thus, the furnishers of business depression—rising prices, increasing costs, labor inefficiency, excessive inventories, and a marked decrease in commercial failures—are conspicuously absent on the horizon.

Plane of Living Is High.

Returning to a retrospective of 1928, the indices of trade show that the American people maintained a high plane of living. Related to cost of living, wages, and maintenance of high wages kept purchasing power high. Commodity prices rose at the middle of the year but declined later, with the average for the year only slightly above 1927.

Several of the basic industries hung up new records. The steel industry is the most important, thereby bettering the previous record, in 1928, by about 10 per cent and exceeding 1927 output by nearly 14 per cent. The mills ended the year working between 80 and 88 per cent of capacity.

The automobile industry set a new record for an output of approximately 4,600,000 cars and trucks, compared with 4,428,000 units produced in 1926, the previous banner year. Output in 1927 was 3,580,000 units. Last year's production, therefore, was 6 per cent above 1926 and 23 per cent above 1927.

Building construction established the greatest volume on record. The total last year was approximately $7,300,000,000, compared with $6,900,000,000 in 1927, an increase of nearly 6 per cent.

Trade Activity Increased.

Improvement in both industry and agriculture was a prime reason for trade activity. Industrial production increased about 6 per cent over 1927, setting a new record. Commodity prices averaged about 16 per cent above 1927 and about 10 per cent over 1926.

The agricultural output was about 5 per cent larger than in 1927, with the value of the principal crops estimated around $8,450,000,000, compared with $8,428,000,000 in 1927, an increase of about 3.3 per cent.

Larger crops were somewhat offset by lower prices.

The movement of commodities by railroads was around 52,000,000 cars, which was about the same as in 1927, but slightly lower than in 1926.

International trade expanded sharply and was relatively more profitable, as exports increased and imports declined. Exports last year totaled about $5,190,000,000 and imports were about $4,980,000,000, giving this country a favorable balance of about $110,000,000. In 1927 exports and imports were $4,865,375,000 and $4,184,742,000, respectively, and our favorable trade balance was $680,633,000.

Speculation a Feature.

Perhaps the chief phenomenon accompanying last year's general prosperity was the tremendous spread of speculation in securities and the swift appreciation in prices. The turnover of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange set a new record for volume by long odds and the average of prices advanced almost steadily to a new high level. The market saw a concession of 5,000,000 shares late in the year, when 7,500,000 shares were traded in.

The total market value of listed stocks mounted to around $1 billion dollars and the amount of credit devoted to financing the vast speculation rose above six billion dollars, as measured by loans to members of the New York Stock Exchange.

The nearest approach to this number is made by the University of California, where 92 students and instructors are doing educational research work.

BIG CROPS CUT PRICES OF GRAIN AT END OF 1928

But Range Is Higher than in 1927.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Farmers shared to some extent in the prosperity of the last year, due largely to relatively high prices prevailing for corn and live stock earlier in the season, and expectations are that remunerative returns will be received during the first half of 1929.

World's production of wheat and last year was well above requirements and exporting countries have an estimated surplus of 200,000,000 to 300,000,000 bushels above importers' needs. The aggregate crop of all countries being 3,730,000,000 bushels, or 165,000,000 bushels in excess of 1927, and there was a big carry over from the preceding crop. Import requirements for the 1928-29 season are placed at $80,000,000 bushels, establishing a new record.

Large Crop Since 1919.

The United States crop of 903,000,000 bushels wheat was the largest since 1919, against 875,000,000 bushels in 1927, but taken as a whole the amount of money received was about in line with that of the previous season. American prices during the latter half of the year were somewhat above those of 1927, particularly in the grain that exports were materially under those of the same season in 1927 and the domestic visible supply increased to record proportions. At the end of the year there was still 190,000,000 bushels or more available for export and the trend of values will be determined almost entirely by the distribution of the surplus.

Canada harvested a record wheat crop this year of 501,000,000 bu, with a record estimated export of 550,000,000 bu, or about 90,000,000 bu in excess of the final returns of 1927.

Desert Grain Markets.

Absence of inducements of a sensational character worked against the grain markets. Large speculators in the main deserted grains for the stock market, where record transactions occurred, much to the detriment of grains. Approximate sales of futures for the four grains, wheat, corn, oats and rye for the year were 16,466,968,000 bu, as compared with 16,925,152,000 bu, or practically 3 per cent.

A surprising feature of the reduction in speculative trading was that despite the large supplies for the world over, with limited outside speculative interest combined, the enormous hedging by cash interests, prices held above the lowest level of the season reached in August, due in a measure to a belief that possible farm relief legislation might assist farmers and holders of grain in general to secure higher prices. At the last such theories were dissipated as regards this crop.

Trading in Grain Futures.

Approximate trading in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade for the year follows:

	1928	1927
Wheat	8,951,968,000	8,094,160,000
Corn	6,317,888,000	6,325,680,000
Oats	1,252,960,000	1,252,960,000
Rye	317,324,000	1,252,960,000
Total bus.	15,496,988,000	15,982,120,000

Indications are that the winter wheat crop in this country will be no larger than that of 1928, should abandonment of acreage next spring and summer be an average, although the 43,228,000 acres seeded is 8.6 per cent under that seeded in 1927, with 578 million bushels raised.

Corn furnished the only sensational feature of the year, with a large crop in July which carried it up to $1.15, and at the maturity of that delivery with an abundance of offerings at $1.15. The season was engineered by Herbert J. Blum, a few others. They let the shorts out at around $1.15, and paid for 12 million bushels of cash corn during July. In September they delivered about three million of the sales for that delivery and merchandised nine million bushels between July and the middle of November through E. R. Bacon Jr. The sales were at $1.00 to $1.11 for No. 2 yellow, $1.00 to $1.12 for No. 2 white, and 90¢ to $1.14 for No. 2 mixed, free on board Chicago. It was considered the best piece of merchandising that the trade has known.

Oats and rye furnished little attraction to speculators and the large reduction in the year's trading was in these two grains. Export buying in rye was reduced by larger crops abroad. 822,000,000 bushels raised in 23 countries, against 843,000,000 bushels in 1927, with only 44,000,000 bushels raised in the United States this year.

Red Wheat Price Up.

Scarcity of soft red winter wheat, owing to the crop failure in the middle west, advanced it to $2.10 or around 39 cents above other grades up to $1.15. At the maturity of that delivery with an abundance of offerings at $1.15. The season was engineered by Herbert J. Blum, a few others. They let the shorts out at around $1.15, and paid for 12 million bushels of cash corn during July. WILL LEASE Double Store and 2d Floor 47th Street at "L" Station

Double store, 310-312 E. 47th St., adjoining "L" size 38x85, and including a 2nd floor occupying the entire rear section of the block. This store has been occupied for 29 years by L. FRIEDMAN, Inc., Furriers, who will consolidate their 47th St. Store with the downtown store located at 301-307 N. Michigan Ave., leaving this wonderful location, with a modern front, available for immediate leasing.

This store adjoins the "L" station and is a 100% business location, being centrally located between the South Center development at 47th Street and South Parkway, which is one of the largest outlying buildings in the city, and the new Roosevelt's Michigan Boulevard Garden Apartments, a $2,750,000 building project, now in the course of construction, at 47th Street and Michigan Ave., which when completed will house 500 families.

The location is already recognized as a leading shopping center, as it serves a densely populated neighborhood of about 300,000 and is readily accessible to such wonderful transportation facilities as the "L", surface and bus lines. Both South Parkway and Michigan Avenue are close by.

This is the first opportunity in 29 years to obtain this marvelous location. Considering the present and future possibilities of this store, a very attractive lease can now be made. For further information, see owner.

The consolidation of the Union Trust Company (founded in 1869) and the First National Bank of Chicago (founded in 1863) will unite the two oldest corporate banks in Chicago. It will be a union based not alone on the logic of nearby locations, but also on a community of ideals—a deep sense of public responsibility and a traditional belief in the value of close personal contact between officers and customers.

The merging of the two banks will place at the service of customers facilities which have built up combined resources of more than five hundred and eighty-five million dollars.

The institution will take its place as one of the world's outstanding banks—a distinct contribution to the prestige of Chicago as a financial center and a striking recognition of the growing importance of the great Middle West in the commercial and industrial development of America.

While the consolidation will mean augmented facilities for more efficient service, customers will find in the larger organization all the departments with which they are familiar. They will also enjoy the advantages of doing business with the same friendly and experienced officers who have served them so capably in the past.

BEEF YEAR FAIR, HOGS BAD, LAMBS MET PROSPERITY

Chicago packers and handlers of live stock pay out an average of $1,700,000 daily for the cattle, hogs and sheep that come here for slaughtering and general distribution. In a year they may out more than $60 million dollars to live stock raisers. This money is sent over a wide territory, a good part of which eventually finds its way back through purchases of merchandise, agricultural implements, and other supplies.

Beef producers had a fairly profitable year, particularly during the first part, while later it was somewhat changed. Hog raisers had a most erratic market, while prosperity favored lamb producers.

Supplies for the year 1928 exceeded those of the two previous years, although the total marketed at twenty leading live stock centers handled a combined total of $3,478,000 cattle, hogs and sheep, compared with $3,467,000 in 1927, and $1,484,000 in 1926, but in all there was a reduction of $3,500,000 as compared with the record year of 1925.

Makes Largest Six Year Total

Constant gains in population throughout the United States and the ability of packers to handle immense stocks of hog products and encourage production of hogs on a much larger scale account for the gain in 1928. Last year the number of hogs in the twenty markets handled received 215,470,000 hogs, the largest six years' total in history, of which Chicago alone had 52,500,000.

Cattle supplies were far below normal with total marketings at twenty points the smallest since 1915. Production was the smallest, with the exception of two years, in the last thirty years. In 1889 and 1890, when fancy steers in Chicago sold at $6.40, the country produced more cattle than it has during the last two years.

Contrary to predictions made by the government, the fall supply of hogs was larger, especially through the eastern part of the country, where markets were swamped, and reduced the eastern demand at western markets to the smallest in years toward the end of the last year.

Marketing of sheep here for the year aggregated $314,000, being among the smallest in twenty-eight years. There were only four other years when supplies were lighter since 1900. Production of sheep and lambs is on a much smaller scale than for the last fifteen or twenty years. Yearly totals from 1910 to 1914 inclusive were all above 5,000,000. A record of 6,055,546 was established in 1922.

Outlook Is Favorable.

"The general outlook for live stock farmers is favorable," says one of the leading authorities, "with business in good condition and labor well employed, and an active demand for meats, not too discriminating as to price, may be expected to continue

At the same time supplies promise to be moderate, particularly as to beef. Hog prices sustained the market well throughout the last three months of the year since the deflation of 1920. This is due, it is said, to prices being permitted to get too high before the break.

"That may be so," said a hog specialist.

"The fact is that the break resulted in heavy losses to producers, and in some instances to packers, and others caused with large stocks of hog products."

While there is a general feeling that the low point has been passed in hog prices for the season, there is a difference in opinion as to the possible movement of the market in the next two or three months. Some expect a material advance, while others predict that ten dollar hogs will be reinstated by February, the latter being based on expectations of greatly reduced marketings, although a rather high market is to be expected next summer, but not as high as last summer, when the top was $13.50.

Cattle and Beef Prices.

Beef steers sold mainly at a range of $16.00 to $18.00 during September and October, and consumers paid high prices for meat despite the fact that there was no organized agitation against the beef, yet it is claimed by specialists that beef prices are not relatively higher than wages or commodities for which people are spending their money.

For the immediate future there is nothing to indicate higher prices for cattle. There are more cattle on feed than last year, the bulk of which will be returned to market during the next three months, some of them not any too well finished, because corn is relatively higher now and farmers have the feeling that it will go higher.

eventy-four years ago the House of Greenebaum was founded upon a policy that today is maintained in all its full strength. To make this institution a financial center for all who sought sound investments was the chief object of its founder.

To aid in the development of progressive communities by the financing of worth-while enterprises, and to spread the benefits of thrift through conservative investments—these have been the aims of Greenebaum Sons since 1855.

Nearly three-quarters of a century's activities have become history and many unforeseen conditions have arisen, but through it all, the House of Greenebaum has upheld the original purposes of its founder, grown with the strength of duties fulfilled and today looks toward the future with a vision of still greater service in the field of such investments.

WATER AND CITIES

A city might conceivably exist without daylight. It cannot exist without water. For water is absolutely essential to the sustenance of human life. It is also practically indispensable for sanitation, for fire protection, and for a thousand other urban uses.

It is because of this essential character of the service rendered by water companies that their securities enjoy such high esteem among conservative investors.

Furthermore, since progressive communities are constantly growing, the companies that supply them with water are likewise assured of steady growth. Steady and rapidly increasing earnings will add still further to the present attractiveness of water company securities for safe investment.

Our current list includes securities which provide a good yield, and at the same time are the obligations of sound, ably managed companies. Circulars will be gladly sent upon request.

WHEAT SELLS AT LOW FOR YEAR; CORN IS HIGHER

Oats Are Up, While Rye Declines.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

All deliveries of wheat sold at a new low for the crop year to date as the result of a wave of scattered liquidation which swept over the market early, with December dropping 1¢ to a low of $1.10½; while May was down to $1.17¾. Still, wheat was up for the month, with December, with a rally coming toward the last on short covering, up 10¢ to 10½¢, and the month's decline was 10¢ lower on the deferred futures, with May 18½¢ to 18¾¢.

At no time were corn prices more than a fraction under Saturday's finish, with shorts in the December on the run, and it advanced 2¢ to 36½¢, closing on a reaction at 35½¢ to 36¢, the latter being 1½¢ higher than on Saturday, while May was 3¢ higher at 39½¢ to 39¾¢. Oats were 4¢ higher to 46¢ lower, with December 4½¢ to 45¢ and May 4½¢ to 46¢, while May was 2¢ lower, the latter on December, which finished at 51, while May was $1.06½¢.

December Longs Sell Wheat.

While the option interest in December wheat was only 2,520,000 bu, longs found the market poorly supported early when they started to liquidate, and the decline was easily attained, and other futures dropped in sympathy. Buying against bids and by shorts absorbed the offerings on the break, and there was also buying by some of the early sellers, and on reports of export sales of 800,000 to 900,000 bu in all positions, largely Manitoba, but including a liberal amount of durums, wheat was 4½¢ to 5¢ lower at the last, with less than 1½¢ of the 4½¢ gain.

Prices were 5¢ to 6¢ lower, the 10½¢ to 11¢ decline, and the 10½¢ to 11½¢ lower at the close.

Routine news attracted little attention. The domestic visible supply increased 1,335,000 bu for the week, and is 138,743,000 bu, against 85,577,000 bu last year. Forecast for a cold wave over the winter, when the belt led to some apprehension as to the next crop, was dispelled and freezing and thawing weather for a number of days and is without snow protection. July closed 30¢ higher at $1.20½¢ to 23¢, or the best figures of the day.

Shipments Take Cash Corn.

Cash houses were sellers of December and buyers of May corn, and while shorts had to cover 2,732,000 bu, the extent of the open interest, sufficient pressure was in evidence on the bulges to prevent a runaway market. Shippers were credited with having taken 200,000 bu of the 270,000 bu delivered on contracts in the morning, while additional considerable attention, and it was to be 120,000 bu, was likely to be moved out of here later in the week to the seaboard for export. No sales were reported to the seaboard, however, during the day.

Showers fell in part of northern Argentina, and will be highly beneficial to the new corn crop. Buenos Aires May was 1¢ lower at 80¢ and Rosario MC lower at 75¢ as the result of the measure. The domestic visible increased 372,000 bu, against 1,947,000 bu last year. Country offerings to arrive were slightly larger, with purchases of 43,000 bu to come here.

Cash interests sold sufficient December oats to hold the price of that delivery within a range of 1½¢ for the day, but it went to 1½¢ over the May at the last, the greatest premium of season. Locals and commission houses sold 1,000 bu of oats delivered early, and covered later on the strength in corn. Foreign shorts covered short sales of December rye early, but the market collapsed toward the last and dropped 2½¢ from the top and finished at the low point.

JOHN D. JR. TAKES KAHN'S PLACE AS PATRON OF OPERA

Accept His Offer of Site for New Building.

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The old guard of Manhattan's blue bloods have accepted the largess of John D. Rockefeller Jr., in his offer of a new site for the Metropolitan opera house after they had twice rejected the offer of Otto H. Kahn, famous patron of the arts.

Rockefeller never a boxholder in the Metropolitan and, according to the regular patrons, never seen among those present in the structure at Broadway and 39th streets, supplanted by his new offer the position which Kahn has slowly gained by twenty years of battling against the entrenched forces of the social register.

Kahn Offers Rejected.

Twice in the last four years Kahn, as chairman of the producing company of the opera, has offered new up-town sites to the conservative parent real estate company and boxholders who control the destinies of the Metropolitan. Twice his offers have been rejected.

But tonight the actual filing of the legal documents awaited only formal announcement that the great house of Rockefeller had been instrumental in providing for New York opera a 99 year lease on three blocks between 48th and 51st streets from 5th to 6th avenues.

The lease, held in large part by the Columbia underworld, like the house of Astor, almost never relinquishing its holdings of real estate, is being turned over to the Metropolitan via the Rockefeller bank accounts for the combined glory of a Manhattan Place de l'Opéra and an ornate structure in which will be housed exhibitions sponsored by the French government.

Boxholders Accept Plan.

The all-powerful boxholders of the Metropolitan, through their committee, have accepted the plan after they had rejected—on the grounds of being "too commercial"—the previous sites and plans offered by Kahn.

It is the first time that the Rockefeller house has interested itself in opera. Previous distribution of Rockefeller wealth has been directed to such practical ends as scientific research, missionary work, education, besides religious benefactions.

BETTER TEETH IN BETTER STUDENTS AIM OF DENTISTS

Plan Expansion of Dental Service in Schools.

"More good molars, less bad teeth," is the principle behind a concerted movement of the Chicago Dental society and the city health department to secure for Chicago school children in 1929 the advantages of a vastly expanded dental clinic system. Dr. Arnold Kegel, health commissioner, has named a board of sixteen to assist him in formulating plans.

Investigation over a long period of time has demonstrated the connection between the number of cavities in a child's teeth and the number of failing grades on his report card. Statistics available in other large cities provide that close dental supervision and care of school children result in a materially improved academic record.

Reduces Number of Repeaters.

Especially has it reduced the number of "repeaters," in such communities as Detroit, which spends $32,000 annually on such dental care at Cleveland, where the bill is $100,000. Cincinnati, which pays $39,000, and Los Angeles, whose expense is $50,000 for the twelve months.

The "repeaters" are children who because of failing grades are compelled to remain another year in the same class, thus costing the city twice the annual expenditure for a child with passing grades.

In Chicago the cost of schooling a child for one year is $81. Eight per cent of the pupils are repeaters, about 40,000 in all. Thus the cost to the city for the children who fail to make passing grades is $3,240,000 a year.

Would Save Four Times Cost.

Such adequate dental care as is projected for Chicago reduced the repeaters in some cities as much as 50 to 60 per cent. On this basis, allowing even half that amount in Chicago, the saving to the city would be $10,000 a year, or more than four times as much as the present cost of services.

Initial expense of the clinic is estimated to be $63,000, and the yearly upkeep about $173,000. The plan comprehends the establishing of dental service under one head, to provide one

Smith, city commissioner of public welfare. The department receives requests for jobs, lodgings, meals, lost relatives, orphans, relief from destitution, medical attention, loans of money and clothing, and physical examinations.

During 1928 the department has been called upon to care for approximately 1,600 cases, and each one has been given attention, the report says. The majority of requests have been for employment. In some cases, the bureau has sent out of employment, 611 calls have been made on employers in the hope of interesting them in the persons who appeal to the department.

"Not one line of work where employment is given was neglected," Mrs. Smith said yesterday. Employers interviewed included factory managers, merchants, heads of corporations, department stores, railroads, offices, hospitals and theaters.

All Types Seek Assistance.

All types of men and women go to the welfare department with their requests for help. Many of them have hard luck stories and are completely "down and out," although Mrs. Smith said there was a larger percentage of persons in the middle class who had applied for help this year than ever before.

"They come seeking direction and information regarding places where they may obtain work," she said.

strides have been made in applied sociology," she said.

COUNTY AIDS THE NEEDY

Unemployment during the last year placed added burdens on the county bureau of public welfare, according to its annual report. Approximately 14,800 cases were given relief, an increase of 5,356 families in a year.

During the year $215,000 was spent in giving relief to 770 blind persons. The bureau also gave relief to 1,592 mothers' pension families at a cost of $1,050,000.

The department also assists needy war veterans in cooperation with organizations dedicated to this purpose.

Bureau Collects $110,500.

In its investigation of county hospital cases to bill patients of financial standing and those less fortunate, the bureau collected $9,500. For the support of indigent persons by liable relatives $161,000 was collected.

More than 20,000 persons were given medical treatment during the year by the staff of thirty physicians in the county public health department, Dr. Hubert L. Wright, chief of the staff, announced yesterday. The department advanced sanitation in the rural districts and prompted the county health department to do the same.

ALIMONY PAYERS IN GOTHAM ASK HELP OF POLICE

New York, Dec. 31.—(Special)—Everybody from financiers to flagmen has offered advice to Grover Whalen since he was made police commissioner. Now Robert Gilbert Ecob, president of the Alimony Payers' Protection Association, has spoken his piece, too.

Mr. Ecob wants Mr. Whalen to "clean up conditions" around the Manhattan family court and the Brooklyn family court, and Mr. Ecob paints those conditions as very, very bad.

"Most of the ladies who patronize these courts," wrote Mr. Ecob bitterly to Mr. Whalen, "make it their ambition to collect the few dollars which have been left for them at the court by the husband."

"This money has been ordered paid the ladies supposedly for the support of small children, but we have evidence to indicate that in many cases it is turned over to worthless paramours or to for liquor."

Mr. Ecob wants Mr. Whalen to station detectives "and get the evidence" on the ladies.

"These ladies have become so bold and brazen in their conduct," continued the Ecob letter, "that these conditions are well known to the courts. We can assure you that these dear little 'naughty' girls will continue these tactics if no sufficient means are employed to make them stop."

"Anything you care to do," concludes the letter, "will be more than appreciated, but from sad experience we can advise you that evidence against a boy friend has to be 100 per cent stronger than any other kind of evidence, or else the magistrate or judge will find some excuse to soak the husband again."

Mr. Ecob has written the mayor as well.

NUMBER OF SUITS FILED LAST YEAR SHOWS DECREASE

A total of 23,066 suits were filed, docketed, registered and indexed in the Superior court during the year 1928, according to the annual report released yesterday by M. S. Skymczak, newly elected chief of the court. Of this number, 16,518 were new suits, and 10,558 were chancery suits, of which 7,648 were divorce actions.

During the year 8,592 law suits and 9,532 chancery suits were disposed of. The figures for the total number of suits filed show a decrease from both 1926 and 1927. In 1926, 35,558 suits were filed, and in 1927 there were 25,876. At the same time the total number of cases disposed of has increased from 1926 and 1927. There were 14,820 law suits and 15,456 chancery suits pending.

Total receipts show an increase over 1926 and 1927. The total receipts for 1928 were $265,526.20; for 1926 they were $253,658, and for 1927 they were $262,1420. The total expenses for 1928 were $158,666.93; for 1926 they were $142,223.50, and for 1927 they were $151,776.92.

The balance over and above expenses for 1928 was $123,859.27, the highest balance of the three years. The year 1926 showed a balance of $110,434.85, while 1927 showed a balance of only $98,412.85.

Improve Living Conditions.

"When unsatisfactory living conditions are unsatisfactory living conditions are reported to the board of health and, in addition, we are endeavoring to influence him to take steps to improve his building," she said.

When a case of destitution is reported to the department, a worker is sent to visit the home. "In many cases the need was so apparent that the worker has used her own funds to give immediate relief rather than wait for other agencies to do it," the report says.

Not the least of the department's business of the year was providing Christmas baskets for poor families. Mrs. Smith said yesterday that she was well-satisfied with the year's work of the department of public welfare. "Concerning the conditions with which we have come in contact, real

CITY FIRE LOSS REDUCED IN 1928, GOODRICH SAYS

Predicts an Even Further Decrease in New Year.

Fire losses in Chicago for 1928 were less than in 1927 and a still further decrease is expected during the new year because of improved equipment and reorganized personnel of the fire department, Fire Commissioner A. W. Goodrich declared yesterday in his annual report.

The fire department report was one of the most optimistic of all the departmental statements outlining the year's activities.

In 1928 property destroyed by fire within the city limits was valued at $15,000,000 and in 1927 this dropped to $11,000,000. Despite an increase of 650 fire alarms during 1928, Mr. Goodrich said that partial figures show the losses will be materially decreased again for the year. He added he is "confident that 1929 will bring a still further decrease."

New Companies Organized.

"The cut in fire losses can be attributed to the revision of the assignments of supervisor officers and the organization and equipment of several additional fire companies," the report continued. "We also have installed the 5-11 alarm system which scientifically redistributes all the fire fighting equipment of the city on the second and third alarms."

Ambulance Service Installed.

Another new feature of the department is the ambulance service. Six new ambulances, costing $6,000 each, are now in operation. Another innovation is the use of powerful searchlights illuminating burning buildings.

"Great progress has been made in fire prevention," the report said. An intensive fire prevention campaign was conducted during the week of Oct. 7, when 300,000 pieces of literature were distributed. A systematic inspection of all places of public gathering has been made and each station commander has been trained to keep in constant touch with conditions in his district."

GOOD MONEY IN SHOW BUSINESS, SING SING'S PRODUCERS DISCOVER

New York, Dec. 31.—(Special)—Despite current Broadway testimony to the contrary, there, apparently is good money to be made in the show business. That is, if the show is one put on by prison inmates for the outside public.

Sing Sing officials announced that with all expenses paid the four performances of "No. No. Nanette," which the prisoners recently gave for the public, had yielded the Mutual Welfare League a net profit of $4,000, or an average of $1,000 a night.

equipment of the city on the second and third alarms."

The most important achievement of the year, according to Mr. Goodrich, was the organization of ten new companies, representing a greatest increase than for the last two-and-a-half years. Five new fire houses have been constructed and five old stations replaced. Contracts have been awarded for more stations to be placed in service by Feb. 1.

Y. W. C. A. TAKES WORK INTO NEW FIELDS IN 1928

Activities and Building Programs Progress.

Time may have been when the Young Women's Christian association was looked upon purely as a religious organization. That might have been the time back in 1877 when the Chicago organization was incorporated, but not in 1928, for the association has kept abreast with the times. With a well laid foundation of Christian principles, it has become for the 30,000 it serves a community center, a home, a school, a recreation center, a place where the young adult may find a standard of values.

A year of accomplishment is indicated in a review of the year made by Miss Anne Guthrie, executive secretary. Building projects represent a total of more than $1,750,000. Programs worked out during the last year indicate that more and more the Y. W. C. A. will in the future use community centers, parks, and public playgrounds. More facilities have been provided for Negroes. More and more are church and industrial groups asking aid of the Y. W. C. A. in conducting athletic groups for women.

Memorial to Cost $1,500,000.

The largest new building project is the Harriet H. McCormick Memorial, a $1,500,000 structure at Dearborn and Oak streets, presented to the Y. W. C. A. by Cyrus Hall McCormick, once a Y. W. C. A. board member. After a year's investigation Mr. McCormick chose the Y. W. C. A. housing project for girls as the most fitting memorial. The building, which will house 500 girls, was dedicated on Dec. 22 when Mr. McCormick presented the keys to Mrs. Herman Butler, during whose presidency the association was promised the gift. A public reception will be held when the building is completed early this year.

The Carrie McGill Memorial, 4933 Drury Lane, which is to be equipped as a home for girls, is another new home. With a $150,000 addition to the residence, 116 girls are now housed there. The third project is the South Parkway branch for Negroes, opened last January at 4559 South Park way. An apartment building was bought with a $100,000 fund, the bequest of Victor F. Lawson, and adapted to the needs of 75 girls.

Open Forest Preserve Camp.

Other innovations for 1928 were the opening of the forest preserve camp at the forest preserve on Milwaukee road, which accommodates 18 girls for group work, summer camping, and week-end parties, and the addition of a health cottage at Forest Beach camp, New Buffalo, Mich. The first experiment by the Y. W. C. A. in using public school property is at the Carter school, where swimming classes for Negroes are conducted on Friday nights.

"Since we are now operating our organization by departments, specializing on certain subjects, we are using community centers more and more instead of buildings for our meetings," Miss Guthrie said. "One instance of this is the new Hyde Park center opened this year. We rented from the Y. M. C. A. the first time we have cooperated with the Y. M. C. A. in using the same building—one swimming pool and one gymnasium, using a separate entrance. As a result we have enrolled 1,276 women, children, and business girls since the first of September."

Take Y. W. C. A. Students.

Taking the Y. W. C. A. to the student is another program which was tried the last year under the new student department. Putting the organization into hospital and school groups had met with favor. It is now in session at St. Luke's hospital, the Presbyterian Home, and Crane Junior college, and calls have come in, according to Miss Guthrie, from others.

"Churches and industries are coming to us for help in working out health programs," said Miss Bernice Miller, who has charge of health education.

"Both the Women's North Side Church Athletic association and the Hyde Park Church Athletic association have been aided by us. We now have twelve industrial groups in our buildings benefiting from our athletic equipment."

"There are few organizations working with the young adult in the health movement, and there is a demand for facilities and leadership for them in activities. We want to take care of the girl and woman after she has left

FOUR VEHICULAR TUNNELS LOOM FOR NEW YORK

50 Million Traffic Program Takes Form.

By TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
New York, Dec. 31.—[Special]—

Manhattan's elevated express highway, already officially approved, has been made a part of New York's $50,000,000 project for traffic relief.

The speedway on steel stilts, which is to straddle 10th avenue from Greenwich Village to Riverside drive, probably will be extended six miles along the Hudson river to the city limits of Yonkers.

This was revealed today along with the information that legislative officials of New York and New Jersey have begun a study of the program for the construction of the last four vehicular tunnels under the Hudson river to provide for interstate traffic during the next 25 years.

Road to Cost $25,000,000.

With alterations to highway plans, the elevated highway is expected to cost $25,000,000. The first units for which contracts will be ready to award as soon as the board of estimate decides the locations of the ramps leading from the street level to the roadway already have been blue printed and all details completed.

The decision to continue the elevated highway to the city limits, it was said, in circles close to the city administration, was the result of negotiations with the New York Central for its west side electrification program began to show progress.

A survey of this section of the highway from 72d street to the tip of Manhattan island, according to city engineers, already has been made.

Direct Route to Jersey.

The road would run parallel to Riverside drive directly above the New York Central tracks and would provide a direct route from New Jersey through the Holland vehicular tunnels to suburban Westchester.

The board of estimate is expected to take up the general traffic relief plan at the Jan. 1 meeting.

City authorities are working on several projects to end traffic congestion. The one meeting with most favor is the proposal to create a board of transportation and control with power to finance a $50,000,000 program through bonds redeemable by tolls collected on new traffic arteries. While the elevated highway would be part of this system, it was explained, it is not the plan of the sponsors of the board to make it a toll road.

Mayor Seeks Action.

To create such a board, legislative authority as well as authorization by Mayor Walker would be necessary. The board would be formed through a division of the board of transportation. Mayor Walker has announced he wants action at the next session of the legislature so that building of highways and tunnels can be started as soon as the city decides what plans are best.

Recommendations for the building of the four proposed Hudson tunnels was made today by Gen. George R. Dyer, chairman of the New York State bridge and tunnel commission, and Mrs. B. B. Bunting, chairman of the New Jersey interstate bridge and tunnel commission. They addressed a communication to Governors Elect Roosevelt and Larson as well as the leaders of the New York and New Jersey legislatures.

Each Tunnel to Build Another.

The recommendation stated each new tunnel could be financed from the operation of its predecessor. The tunnel officials said they had been encouraged by the unexpected earning capacity of the Holland tunnel, which will not reach its capacity traffic before 1935. In their opinion, the first of the new tunnels should be in the vicinity of 42d street and the next would have its New York terminus near 59th street.

Tunnels are recommended rather than bridges principally because of the great loss sustained by holders of property under the necessarily long approaches.

There are three other major traffic plans now under consideration by New York City officials. Mayor Walker has a plan idea of a vehicular tunnel running the length of Manhattan island, while Joseph V. McKee, president of the board of aldermen, is supporting a triborough bridge to connect Manhattan, Queens, and the Bronx. The third proposal is a Manhattan-Brooklyn vehicular tunnel.

school, for there is a greater need than ever then for health education."

Four Thousand in Classes.

More than 4,000 were enrolled last year in the educational work, in fifty classes, exclusive of health work. The subjects included French, German, interior decorating, and others in which young girls are interested. For the first time mixed discussion groups were held in which young men and women discuss social, political, and religious problems.

The Y. W. C. A. has increased wonderfully in standard this last year, said Miss Guthrie, in summing up the work. "We are pushing forward educationally, now, rather than in the old time form of social service."

The officers of the association are: Mrs. William L. Hodgkins, president; Mrs. William P. Sidley and Mrs. Harold L. Blood, vice presidents; Mrs. Ralph Kimball, corresponding secretary; Miss Elizabeth True, treasurer, and Miss Elizabeth Webster, recording secretary.

Members of the board of directors are: Miss Grace Dudley, Mrs. James A. James, Miss Harriet Houghteling, Mrs. E. C. Jenkins, Mrs. Edwin T. Johnson, Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Miss Jeanie Z. MacGreer, Miss Florence Partridge, Mrs. Albert George, and Mrs. Robert W. Childs.

PROGRESS RAZES HISTORIC WALLS AROUND PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 31.—Seventy-two bastions of the historic Paris fortifications have been leveled to the ground and the day is in sight when the last vestige of the mighty wall that circled the city for almost a century will have disappeared, according to a report just issued.

On the site of the famous defenses which defied the Prussian armies for months in 1870 broad new boulevards and modern apartment houses are being constructed. "Soon Paris will no longer be separated from its suburbs by an artificial barrier and will be free to expand like all other modern cities."

The expense of demolishing the fortifications, which cost millions of solid gold francs to build, is estimated at about $3,000,000, while the materials—old iron and brick—when put up for sale by the government have realized only $240,000. Four million cubic meters of earth and 400,000 cubic meters of masonry were removed in the course of the destruction of the works.

The fortifications are regretted, not only by antiquarians, but by many Parisians, who were wont to promenade there on Sundays. They have played an important part in popular song and verse, and owed much of their fame in the past to the exploits of the red sashed Apaches and their ferocious girl friends.

Once Scene of Duels.

Since the war, the Parisian bastions more or less deserted the fortifications and sought new haunts to stage their deadly knife duels, but the grassy slopes of the old bastions were still frequented by all sorts of queer and picturesque characters, and with their disappearance Paris has again sacrificed something of its romance to modern progress.

It is the first time in seven hundred years that Paris ceases to be a walled city, since King Philip Augustus built the first city wall in A. D. 1200.

FIELD MUSEUM MARKS 1928 AS A YEAR OF SUCCESS

1,000,000 Visitors, 14 Expeditions Cited.

Satisfaction over one of the most impressive years in the annals of the Field Museum of Natural History was expressed yesterday by Stephen C. Simms, director, in reviewing the accomplishments of the last year.

"For the second time—the first was in 1927—more than 1,000,000 persons have visited the museum," he said. "While many thousands of out-of-town visitors are included in that number, the greater attendance was of Chicagoans which indicates a gratifying appreciation of the local public for the institution."

The 14 expeditions.

The Crane Pacific expedition, sponsored and led by Cornelius Crane, making a year's voyage around the Pacific ocean to collect zoological specimens of different lands.

The Harold White-John Coats Abyssinian expedition to collect Abyssinian animals, financed and led jointly by Harold White of New York and John Coats of Ayrshire, Scotland.

The William V. Kelley-Roosevelt expedition to eastern Asia, organized to make zoological collections in certain almost unexplored territory, sponsored by William V. Kelley, president of the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company, and led by Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Kermit Roosevelt.

The Capt. Marshall Field anthropological expedition to Mesopotamia, which completed its sixth season of archaeological excavations on the site of the ancient city of Kish, believed to have been the seat of the world's earliest civilization. Capt. Marshall Field is sponsor of the expedition for the museum, and Prof. Stephen Langdon of Oxford, director.

The Capt. Marshall Field anthropological expedition to British Honduras to continue research begun in 1927 on ancient Maya civilization, sponsored by Mr. Simms, led by J. Eric Thompson, assistant curator of Central and South American archaeology.

The second Rawson-MacMillan subdivision of six new exhibition halls in the department of anthropology. Among the larger expeditions which will continue during 1929 are the following:

WOMEN RISE TO NEW POWER IN POLITICS OF 1928

Play Important Role in the Presidential Race.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Politically, the women of America spoke with a fuller voice in 1928 than ever before in history. In the 36,798,900 votes cast for president Nov. 6, the greatest number in the nation's annals, a larger proportion of feminine votes was apparently cast than ever before. Women's participation in the campaign was greater. But there are no indications that it altered the results of the election.

A study of the complete figures indicates only one state of the forty-eight which may have been swung by the women's vote against the male majority. And that is Texas, which Hoover carried over Smith by 26,000 out of a total of 708,000 votes cast. In the Lone Star state, the women may perhaps have cast the ballots that tore it loose from its traditional Democratic mooring and landed it in the Republican column, although it's open to doubt.

May Have Won Chicago.

For the rest of the commonwealths no adversity of the sexes is seen in the returns. The feminine majority in the male majority walked hand in hand in a sort of political Garden of Eden.

It's quite possible, indeed, rather likely, that the women's vote gave Chicago to Hoover—he carried the city by 21,030 votes out of a total of 1,313,680 cast. But it would be hard to prove because the men and women voted in such a secret manner.

Oratorically, the women played a greater part in the Republican and Democratic national conventions and in the national campaigning.

But it was in the field of organization that the feminine electorate undoubtedly played its strongest role. Politicians have long since come to realize that organization is the key to the men's button a smile. They have a genius for it, a flair for minute detail, for devising and for patient work of a sort which men politicians have dodged as too much drudgery, but which is reflected in votes on election day.

Mrs. Hert Is Factor.

On the Republican side, the Hoover organization leaned heavily on Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Kentucky, vice chairman of the national convention, who made it clear that she intended to run her end of the campaign on a businesslike basis. As the widow of "Tobe" Hert, who in 1916 was western manager of the Republicans' campaign, the lady from Kentucky has a knowledge of politics that was never gained from books or in college classrooms.

And early in the campaign, soon after the ticket was nominated, Hubert Work, national chairman, began talking in terms of wonder and admiration of the organization work which under Mrs. Hert had quietly started up without much fussing or trumpeting all over the country.

How well she impressed her associates on the committee is evidenced by their bringing her forward as a possible member of the Hoover cabinet.

Lean on Mrs. Moskowitz.

On the Democratic side, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, the national chairman, was the most influential feminine force, was Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, who has been called at Albany the "Col. House of Gov." Al Smith's administration." Mrs. Moskowitz was a member of the Democratic executive committee, and her prominent part was played as an adviser in the inner councils.

Politicians who have cut a new weight in the actual candidates for office. The election Nov. 6 added three more women to the membership of the United States house of representatives. Oddly enough the first name of all of them is Ruth, and they have all been seasonned in politics. They are Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, elected congressional man-at-large from Illinois, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, elected to congress from Florida, and Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, elected to congress in New York.

Mrs. McCormick is generally regarded as although a superior as a politician. She likes to play the politics of politics like a man. It has been her profession for thirty years. She is the daughter of the late Senator Mark Hanna and widow of Senator Medill McCormick, and she began her political work back in 1896 when as a youngster in politics she accompanied her father to the Senate. As one of the great organizers, she has a faculty of working at high pressure without noise or apparent exertion. Men politicians regard her as a wonder at throwing a campaign into high gear on silent gears.

Bryan's Daughter to Fare.

Mrs. Owen is the daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan. She, too, comes by her political bent by inheritance. Mrs. Pratt is a member of the board of aldermen of New York City.

Thus the election saw congress the names of three women of ripe experience in politics, each of whom was elected as a feministic figure or as a woman's candidate, but on a basis to appeal to the entire electorate and standing on the same footing as the rest of the candidates.

In Illinois, Mrs. Bertha Baur, as Republican national committeewoman, brought to the task of organizing ripe experience in business. On the Democratic end, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conley as national committeewoman also opened with the swish, quiet charracteristic of the feminine political organization. With the men it's generally a matter of much noise and clatter as the machine gets under way. But the women seem to get down to their knitting without nearly the fuss.

Many Fit Indo Pictures.

Scores of highly trained women politicians fitted into the picture—in a short résumé it is not possible to bring them in all by name. And the campaign between Hoover and Smith, by virtue of issues of prohibition and religion, made an unusual appeal to women on both sides. The registration in the large cities showed it. All over the country the women participated in never before.

In Chicago, for example, although numerically the voting strength of the women is considerably less than of the men, still the figures show the women

WOMAN LEADER

ENGLISH SCHOOL SYSTEM FAVERS U. S. TRADITIONS

Britons Learn Washington Was "Gentleman."

BY PAUL SHINKMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

London, Dec. 21.—Despite the fact that the term "public school" in England means exactly the opposite of that in America, there is a similarity between the school system, as well as the curriculums, which enables pupils to transfer with comparative ease, even within such specialized courses as national history, literature, geography, and the arts.

The English public schools actually correspond to the American private schools, being privately operated with a limited enrollment. The English prototype of the American public school is found in the school system maintained by the London county council, which forms the pattern for the common schools of the entire country.

English Schools Like Ours.

Although the London county council educational system provides increasing facilities for specialized practical vocational training along the lines of the American public schools, it is the general curriculum of the elementary and secondary schools which provides the most interesting trans-Atlantic comparison. Compulsory education until the age of 16 is embraced in the elementary school, after which the student may elect to continue in the secondary school in order to specialize and prepare for a university, or higher education.

Interesting sidelights are provided in the list of recommended books, which includes a large proportion by American historians, including James Beck, former U. S. collector general.

Talk on Anglo-U. S. Relations.

This year the program of talks already has included a lecture on Anglo-American relations by Phillip Kerr, secretary of the Rhodes Trust at Trinitar, the duke of Wellington at Virginia; Sir Francis Drake, and King

Henry V. at Aiguesourt, where he defeated the French, are given full prominence. Florence Nightingale,

Edith Cavell, and Queen Elizabeth fire

the imaginations of the British ladies.

Or particular interest to Americans

is the inclusion of George Washington in a prominent position among the world heroes. The textbook, "Ground-work of British History," dealing with the American revolution, deprecates the British morale and lack of capacity and states, "The colonists, on the other hand, had in the Virginian planter, George Washington, a man as commander in chief who, without being perhaps a great general, was a courageous and steadfast, even in the darkest periods of the war."

The cooperative modern organization of the educational system is due to the fact that religious organizations supplied practically the entire elementary education from medieval times to early in the nineteenth century. Until

1823, when parliament voted $100,000 for public education, the schools met their expenses from endowments of private benefactors, as well as fees

without interruption and were administered from the treasury until 1839.

Then the amount was increased to $150,000 and administered by a special committee of the private council known as the education department.

British Praise Washington.

The British children's gallery of national heroes is limited, but the stature of Queen Victoria at Trafalgar, the duke of Wellington at Virginia; Sir Francis Drake, and King

Henry V. at Aiguesourt, where he defeated the French, are given full

prominence. Florence Nightingale,

Edith Cavell, and Queen Elizabeth fire

the imaginations of the British ladies.

Or particular interest to Americans

is the inclusion of George Washington

in a prominent position among the circumstances obtaining in the export of empire, which is "the meeting place of nearly every race and people in the world."

Furthermore, rigid British traditions exert their customary influence, as is shown by the distinction between the "public school" and the school maintained by the public. The former is based on century old tradition of education, while the latter is based on the traditions of the field of education.

Traditions Bind System.

Although the London county committee system is considered a pattern for the country, it is insisted that its policy is influenced by imperial commonwealths of the east.

Candy Bill of U. S. for Year Will Be One Billion

America's candy bill this year will exceed $1,000,000,000. Total output of the candy manufacturers of the United States, it is estimated, will be about two and a half billion pounds. Per capita consumption of candy of all kinds throughout the nation for the year is estimated at 150 pounds.

Compilation of candy statistics for the year made by Theodore W. Bunge, president of Bunge Brothers of Chicago, shows that certain states of the west, a large per cent of whose population consists of ranchers, miners and cattlemen eat more candy than

MILBURN IS NEW PLAYGROUND OF RICH SPORTSMEN

Retreat as Subdividers
Invade Lake Forest.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Crowded ever northward by a rising tide of population from the city and hemmed in on the north by the factory districts of North Chicago and Waukegan, playfolk of the north shore have sought and found a new and exclusive retreat in the fields and woodlands around the sleepy little village of Milburn, ten miles northwest of Waukegan.

There, away from the scourge of subdividers, Chicago's millionaire sportsmen are laying the cornerstone of a new ultra exclusive community, where "Yokks" will be shouted by red-coated huntmen and where there will be plenty of room to drive a golf ball without hitting a real estate sign.

Sport to Reign at Milburn.

Out at Milburn, among the walnut groves that skirt the meanderings of Mill Creek, sport will be king long after the disintegrating acres of Lake Forest manorial estates have been cut up into small lots to suit the whims of a third and a fourth generation who have more consideration for a profitable real estate deal than for the traditions of their ancestral estates.

The tide is ever outward on the north shore. Years ago Rogers Park was the outdoor refuge of tired millionaires and their sport-loving sons and daughters. Then it was Evanston, then Wilmette and last Lake Forest, with the back up against Waukegan's factories.

Now Lake Forest has been reached by the army of real estate men. Great chunks of McCormick's acres are cut up with new pavements and sidewalks. The George Alexander McKinlock estate is gone, and the late J. Ogden Armour's Melody farm is going.

Fight Losing Battle.

Brave attempts are made to stem the tide, but prices go up and estates go out. An air-tight zoning law is enforced, but the experts who drew it up admit it leaves room in Lake Forest's sixteen square miles for a population of some 94,000, whenever they want to come.

For the sportsmen, the urge to hunt came a year ago when the Shady Hillers, the first to start out to ride to hounds, was shut off by real estate men. They found a new place to play and they derived a great plan.

Up in the country they discovered Milburn, a community of farmers, weary of scratching poor clay for a meager return. The hunters found a hunting-ground and the farmers got farm relief in the form of fat prices for land that had been a drug on the market.

The new Onwentsia hunt club for the elite of the elite was born, and around it those who are asked and can afford it are embarking on one of the biggest real estate deals in these parts.

No Room for Climbers.

The plan is roughly this: Each member buys a large plot of ground for a future estate. No small parcels are sold, and it's all tied up so that the club members can't climb out. If you're accepted, you get to buy it, but you can't buy and no original buyer is going to sell to you. It's a colony for those who want to hunt far from Elmer's Klaxon.

Austin Niblock, M. F. H., which means, in case you don't know, Master of Fox Hounds, is prime instigator of the plan.

Then there are the Joseph T. Bowens, the David Adlers, the Joseph T. Ryerson's, Mrs. Howard Linn, the William H. Mitchells, the William Mitchell Blairs, and the William McCormick Blairs, Libby and Janet Chase, the Nolie Judahs, the Benjamin Leslie Behrns, Steve and Bob Jennings, "Nig" Bowen, E. J. Prendergast, the A. B. Dicks, and others.

Budding in Wilderness.

Out in the wilderness they're building themselves a new world, and at the rate things are going it's not long before there will rise stately towers of new mansions, and the trim lines of Italian gardens will gladden the eye.

Lake Forest is getting too crowded for playtime millionaires. It's "all built up." Here's a new spot, all protected. What about the rising tide of plebeians from the growing city? Well, pass a zoning law.

CALL KING FROM GRAVE TO CLAIM
PALACE, OR ELSE—

Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
BERLIN, Dec. 31.—His royal majesty, Ernst August, long deceased King of Hanover, has been summoned by the Prussian state to appear before the Hanover court if he wants to retain the historical palace of the philosopher Baron Gottfried Wilhelm von Leibnitz.

The king has been entombed in the Guelph family vaults since 1851, but representatives of the authorities want full ownership of the Leibnitz palace, a perfect gem of architecture. The king purchased the palace in 1840 when it was threatened by demolishers. When Prussia annexed Hanover in 1866, the authorities annexed the palace into a museum, but nobody is certain to whom it legally belongs.

Now the town wants to establish ownership beyond doubt. Its official organ, which publishes the summons to the king, adds threateningly, "if the king fails to reply soon he will forfeit all claims he may have to ownership."

Appellate Court Gets 766 New Cases Here in '28

A total of 766 cases were filed in the appellate court here, comprising the first district of Illinois, or the Cook county area, in the last year, according to the annual report submitted by the clerk of the court yesterday. Including cases filed previously to 1928, but not previously disposed of, 858 cases were completed by the court during the year. The three divisions of the court shared the work as follows: First division, 318 cases disposed of; second division, 246 cases; third division, 390 cases.
